order for terms of half the board to expire every two years. The mayor is elected for two years.

The town officials have no announced opposition. Persons may file for office through September 14 at the town offices in the municipal building. A $10 filing fee is charged.

Gabriel and Young have completed two terms on the Town Board.

Gabriel, 41, and his wife, Vona, live at 1408 North Main Street. They have a son, Tony, of Knoxville, Tenn. Gabriel is the town's former delegate to the Regional Council of Governments. Gabriel has operated a bus line and charter service here 31 years. In announcing he is a candidate for another term, Gabriel said:

"A lot of things have happened in Mooresville in the past eight years, and a lot remains to be done. I want our town to continue growing, and I will do everything in my power to see it grow. I am reducing my business activities, and if I am elected I will be free to talk with and serve all the people of Mooresville."

Young, 48, is service manager of Safety Chevrolet Co. He and his wife, Arville, and their 15-year-old son, Donnie, live at 339 Patterson Avenue. During his years on the Town Board, Young has drawn several assignments that required extra time and study.

Presently, he is the board's representative on the I CARE board of directors.

"Yes," he commented regarding his board service, "there is a certain amount of time and effort involved, but rewards have been worth it."

Young pointed to a few improvements that have come about during his board service. He mentioned the new traffic control system installed two years ago and he observed that completion of the Fieldstone Road-Shearer's Chapel Road connector and the extension of Iredell Avenue to the N. C. 150 bypass "have been of tremendous importance to our orderly growth."

He spoke, too, of improvements in housing conditions that have come about, at least in part, through Town Board leadership. And the town's perimeter zoning authority assumed three years ago has a strong and favorable bearing on development in the surrounding rural area, he said.

As for the future, he sees even more demanding duties. He said waste-disposal, relief for rural South Iredell is, of course, a problem, if not a responsibility, for county government, "but we've got to be realistic and help in every way we can."

Labor Day

September 3, 1973

Labor Day is a unique holiday, observed as a national holiday only in the United States. The day was established by national law as a salute to the working person, and to Americans the holiday heralds a change in life style as it usually marks the end of vacation season, the start of another school year, and the change. These words from the Living Bible refer to work.

"What does one really get from hard work? I have thought about this in connection with all the various kinds of work God has given to mankind. Everything is appropriate in its own time. But though God has planted eternity in the hearts of men, even so, man cannot see the whole scope of God's work from beginning to end. So I conclude that, first, there is nothing better for a man than to be happy and to enjoy himself as long as he can; and second, that he should eat and drink and enjoy the fruits of his labors, for these are gifts from God."

The man who works hard sleeps well whether he eats little or much, but the rich must worry and suffer insomnia.

A lazy man is brother to the saboteur.

Remember to observe the Sabbath as a holy day. Six days a week are for your daily duties and your regular work, but the seventh day is a day of Sabbath rest before the Lord your God."

The Nances, who reside on China Grove, route 1, are members of the Mount Zion United Church of Christ in China Grove.

"I am glad to be in Mooresville as manager of the local Rayless Store. I have found the people most friendly and nice to me—a newcomer to the town."

The young man is a nephew of Claude Nantz of 521 Boger Avenue in Mooresville.

Lake Use

extent," Randall said, "the people usually recognize the obvious and form themselves into a town. This isn't feasible along the lake shore, so the burden is going to fall on the county government."

As for sewage and water supply, the Marine Commission chairman said Mooresville isn't assured of clear sailing.

"We're pumping our water from the Catawba River basin, and we're discharging treated waste water into the Yadkin basin," he said, "and I don't know how long we can continue to divert water in this way. The idea isn't pleasant, but we're going to think in terms of drinking from the same source we dump into."

Randall commended the Iredell board for foresight in lake-area zoning.

"Iredell has taken the lead in recognizing that the lake shoreline is indeed a special area deserving special attention," he said, "but we've got a long way to go to keep pace with lake development."

The aid to the Mooresville Chapter of American Field Service is unchanged at $900.

A $3,247 appropriation will be shared by a dozen or so state and national service that have been investigated and endorsed by North Carolina United, the state UF coordinating agency.

Rounding out the budget are a $800 item for administrative expense, and $1,000 for the UF emergency account.

springs, worn-out stoves, building material, tree trimmings.

"These collectors won't pick up garbage unless it's in a 35-gallon can," Brown said, "and it's pretty hard to get a busted refrigerator in a 35-gallon can."

County Commissioner David Sides said the county must take a "close, hard look" at waste-disposal problems all over the county, "keeping in mind that what we do for some we must do for all." He added that he couldn't think of a more pressing problem countywide than adequate waste-disposal facilities.

Lundy added that other sections of the county are experiencing growth as rapid as that along the lakeshore, and that "urban-oriented" problems in these sections are growing accordingly.

Bryan agreed the county government must provide equal service for all, but he promised relief for South Iredell.

"I would estimate that by July of next year we will have worked out a solution with Mooresville on sharing its landfill. What reasonable people want to work out problems, they can."

The commissioners are not looking to the establishment of a sanitary landfill in South Iredell. Instead, they promised to begin negotiations with Mooresville toward sharing the town's landfill.

"It would cost us hundreds of thousands of dollars to go all the way full-time into the garbage business," the board chairman said, "equipment, land, personnel would be a tremendous investment."

The county board instructed Barker to meet with Mills and work out basic information on which to base a discussion with the Town Board regarding sharing the use of the municipal landfill. The county approached the town on this point last spring, and Mills prepared a proposal for the county government. The town received no response at the time of its suggestion of jointly financing the landfill operation.
