

Certain Farmers Eligible For FHA Emergency Loans

As a result of tornadoes and heavy rains inflicted substantial damage to certain areas of Iredell County, the President has declared Iredell a disaster area.

This means farmers who suffered a loss on May 27 or 28, may qualify for an emergency loan from the Farmers Home Administration.

Emergency loans at 5 percent interest may be made for:

1. The purchase of feed, seed, fertilizer and other farm operating expenses.
2. Purchase of farm machinery when necessary to replace that destroyed or damaged as a result of the disaster.
3. Purchase livestock to replace those lost as a result of the qualifying disaster.
4. Meeting family subsistence needs.
5. Purchase and repair of essential home equipment and furnishings for the family to maintain itself on the farm in a reasonably satisfactory manner.
6. The replacement or repair of essential buildings, silos, storage facilities, fences, drainage facilities, irrigation facilities, the leveling of land and clearing of debris and the restoration of permanent pasture when necessary.

To be eligible for an emergency loan, the applicant must:

- a. Be a citizen of the United States.
- b. Be an established farmer with a reasonably good past record of operations, whether owner or tenant.
- c. Have suffered a qualifying loss on May 27 or 28 not compensated for by insurance.
- d. Possess legal capacity, be of good character, and have the necessary experience to carry out the proposed farming operations.
- e. Be unable to provide the necessary funds with his own resources or to obtain sufficient operating credit from local commercial sources.

Applications for physical damage such as damage to farm dwellings, service buildings, land and water resources, and farm equipment will be accepted until August 30, 1973.

Applications for production losses will be accepted until March 25, 1974.

All applications will be filed at the local Farmers Home Administration office located on the third floor of the Post Office in Statesville.

Army Reserve Sets New Women's Military Policy

Women without prior military service but with civilian experience in a number of fields can now join the Army Reserve at a higher rank and at more pay than those without civilian experience.

In addition, Army Reserve spokesmen said that women with these civilian acquired skills will no longer have to go on active duty at an active Army installation for an extended period of time.

They listed the skills needed by local Army Reserves as secretarial, clerical and food service.

Those women who qualify under this enlistment program will enter the Army Reserve as privates first class, and will spend only two weeks at the Women's Army Corps Center and School at Ft. McClellan, Ala., instead of the seven weeks required in the past for basic training. They are permitted to complete the remainder of their basic training at home with their Reserve units.

Upon completion of basic training, they will be promoted to corporal or sergeant, or the equivalent specialist rank. A sergeant makes $51.28 per week, which comes to $3.20 an hour.

In addition to having a civilian acquired skill, and not having previous military service, women will have to be between the ages of 19 and 25, and be high school graduates.

The Army Reserve is still interested in women who have previously served in the military, and those without previous service who do not have the required skills, said Army Reserve spokesmen.

Women with previous service can probably join the Army Reserve unit at their old rank, spokesmen said, noting the reserve is anxious to get as many women as possible with military experience in the unit.

Women who do not have a civilian skill can join the Army Reserve unit and receive training for such a skill. A woman can receive training which will lead to well-paid civilian job, according to reserve spokesmen. She will spend a few months on active duty taking both basic training and advanced skill training before retraining to her hometown.

Further information may be obtained at the U. S. Army Reserve Center located on Oakdale Circle, Statesville, or by calling (704) 872-3360.
