

Eric's Exasperating Exercise In Logistics: How To Get Coco Into Car

THE FIRST STEP IS A NECK LOCK

Oops, The Front End Has Other Ideas

HOW CAN ONE OLD DOG BE SO STUBBORN?
Got The Front Going, But The Tail Got Away

A PUSH MAY BE BETTER THAN A PULL
I Think I'd Better Go Over My Plan Again

Eric Brawley is seven. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brawley of Shepherd. The Brawleys live near and attend Vanderburg United Methodist Church, and they were there Sunday for an outdoor service marking the beginning of an addition to the church educational building.

Coco is the Brawley family dog, and she figures she's part of the family she goes where the family goes. So she attended Sunday's groundbreaking. During the service, Eric took it upon himself to get Coco from under foot and into the car.

Tribune photographer David Chamberlain also attended the groundbreaking, and his attention was drawn to Eric as the youngster struggled valiantly, but in vain, to maneuver the dog into the car.

Finally, Eric's older brother, Mark, came over and gave a hand. David surmised that Mark saved a good deal of trouble for Eric. Coco? She accepted the entire ordeal as just part of the responsibilities of being a family dog.

Dedication, Open House At Mental Health Clinic

The Tri-County Mental Health Center in Salisbury will be dedicated November 11, and open house will be held at the facility as part of the afternoon program.

David Flaherty, secretary of the North Carolina Department of Human Resources, will be guest speaker at the dedication service that begins at 2:30 p.m. Sunday. Open house will be held from 3 p.m. until 5 p.m.

The new center, which serves Iredell, Rowan and Davie counties, is located at 165

Mahaley Avenue in Salisbury. Garner Bagnal of Iredell County, chairman of the board of directors, will deliver the welcoming speech with the invocation and benediction given by Rev. Jim Cress of the Rowan Cooperative Christian Ministry. Master of ceremonies will be Charlie R. Walters, Rowan County commissioner and member of the board of directors.

The new Tri-County complex offers residents of the three counties alcoholism, medical, psychiatric, psychological, and vocational rehabilitation services.

The complex began its services in September 1969 as a result of the merging of the Iredell and Rowan Mental Health Clinics and the formation of the Davie County Mental Health Clinic. It is open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The complex, with services, policies, procedures, regulations, and budget covered by the North Carolina Department of Mental Health and the Tri-County Mental Health Authority, receives financial support from county general funds, state-federal matching and non-matching funds and through patient fees.

Kiddieland Nursery Opens In Lodge

Mooreville's newest childcare facility is Kiddieland Nursery, which opens November 12.

Beatrice Lytle is operator and teacher at the nursery located on the first floor of Masonic Lodge 369 at 142 South Maple Street. She is conducting registration this week.

Miss Lytle said the nursery can accommodate 25 pre-school children. She said Kiddieland is licensed by the state for child care.

The Masonic Lodge is providing its building for the nursery, Miss Lytle said, and "liberal financial contributions" have come from other organizations and individuals.

Registration is being held this week from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. The operator said nursery hours will be from 6:30 a.m. until 4:40 p.m.

Miss Lytle is a qualified teacher. Other members of her staff include Mrs. Guy Griffin and Mrs. Clyde Young, and a cook, all with child-care experience.

"Kiddieland is not a baby-sitting service," Miss Lytle said, "it is designed for and it will operate as an educational institution. Our first responsibility, beyond assuring the child's safety and well-being, is the training of his mind."

She said the school is designed for all children of the community not of school age.

86 Donors At Monday's Bloodmobile

The Piedmont Carolinas Regional Blood Center bloodmobile collected 86 pints of blood during its 11:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. visit to Mooresville Mills November 5.

T. C. Homesley, chairman of blood services for the South Iredell Red Cross Chapter, termed the blood production disappointing.

"We can't match our blood usage with so few donors," he said, "we've got to get into the 125 pints-per-visit range to maintain our reputation for giving more blood than we use."

Homesley pointed out that 107 persons came to the bloodmobile, but 21 were rejected for one minor medical reason or another.

Among the active donors were Jack Jefford, who received his three-gallon pint; Harry Mayhew, who gave his 16th pint; and David Honeycutt and Van Knox, each of whom qualified for a one-gallon pin.

Park View PTA Plans Meeting

The November meeting of the Park View School Parent-Teacher Association will be held on Tuesday, November 13, in the school's cafeteria at 7:30 p.m.

The program for the month will be the first of its kind to be held at Park View. After a short but important business session, the meeting will discuss into grade-level sessions.

At each grade-level meeting, the teachers for that grade level will present a short panel presentation, to be followed by a question and answer session.

This will provide an opportunity for parents to learn and understand what is being taught in their child's grade level. "The object of the grade-level meetings is to bring into closer relations the home and the school so that parents and teachers may better understand and cooperate in the education of our children," a PTA official stated.

All Park View parents are encouraged to be at the important and informative PTA meeting.

Tips On Conserving Use Of Energy At Home

We hear a lot these days about the energy crises. Here are some energy saving suggestions from heating and lighting experts:

HEATING

1. Insulation can save enough fuel to pay for itself in a short time. Not only that; it can make heating more even, and help keep the house more comfortable.

2. Storm windows, storm doors, weatherstripping can cut heating costs, too—by as much as 20-25%, some homeowners find.

3. Pulling down window blinds and drawing drapes can also help.

4. Attic doors can be responsible for much heat loss. Weatherstripping and insulating them can reduce or eliminate it.

5. Check your heating system at the beginning of each season. Be sure to include chimney in checkup.

6. Close off all unused rooms and shut off their heat source.

ELECTRICITY

1. Get everyone in the habit of turning off lights when not needed.

2. Check to see if light bulbs of lower wattage will provide sufficient light in halls, closets, other rarely used areas.

3. Use fluorescent lights wherever possible. They take much less current than the incandescent type.

4. Check electrical appliances carefully. If they're not working efficiently, they may be consuming extra current — and be a hazard as well.
