remain on the board, but Tyner said this week he is not a candidate for re-election. Last week, Frank Fields came out for one of the school board posts.

Campbell is making his first try for elective office. In reaching his decision to declare for the school office, he said his position as a father and his experience as a teacher were "major factors."

"In as much as I now have three children in the Mooreville school system I have a vital interest in the quality of education offered in our community," he said, "and I feel my years in the classroom have provided me with insight into what good schools are all about. If I'm elected, I will do my utmost to put my experience to use."

A native of Mooreville, Campbell is a graduate of Dunbar High School and Livingston College. He is a member of the faculty at North Iredell High School.

The candidate is a veteran of 15 years Air Force service, during which he saw action in the Korean War. He is chairman of the Trustee Board and secretary at Watkins Chapel A.M.E. Zion Church, and he is president of the Laity of the North Carolina District of his denomination's Western North Carolina Conference. He is junior warden in Mount Carmel Masonic Lodge in Statesville.

Campbell is a widower. His wife was the former Beulah Watkins. Campbell and his four children live on River Road.

Noon October 12 is the deadline for filing a candidacy for the school board. The election will be held November 6.

The Northwestern Bank had its beginning in 1903 with the founding of the Bank of Sparta. With the election of the cashier of the Deposit and Savings Bank of North Wilkesboro to a political office and the death of the president of Merchants and Farmers Bank of Bakersville, these banks turned to the strong leadership of the Doughtons and Duncans at the Bank of Sparta. In July 1937, these three banks, joined by the Watauga County Bank of Boone, formed The Northwestern Bank.

From original resources of $2.5 million in 1937 to resources of $215 million in mid-1973, the bank has come a long way. Over the years, the bank has extended its outreach from the five original counties to 39 counties in Western and Piedmont North Carolina. Northwestern now operates in 145 offices in more than 75 communities.

Sewage

the work was done.

"I would say that in at least five per cent of the cases the system had to be altered," Moore said, "but the present problem has been poor soil that wouldn't accept septic tank operation in the first place."

The sanitation said soil conditions and population density were the major factors in malfunctioning self-contained sewage disposal systems that have become a health problem in some sections of rural Iredell.

"We have had flare-ups in some areas of our county," Moore said, "but our situation isn't nearly as serious as in other counties, especially low-lying eastern sections."

Moore reminded that the law's intent is to protect the builder and homeowner by determining whether a septic tank can be used—before it is installed, not after it fills the backyard with a foul and unsanitary evidence that it can't.

Violation of the state law is a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not more than $200. The county health department is charged with enforcing the ordinance.

The board accepted the septic and directed Mills to collect taxes due on the total.

Annual homecoming will be observed Sunday, October 7, at the Mooreville Church of God on Smith Street with the Larry Ervin Singers being the featured singing group.

Rev. James D. Allen, pastor, extends a cordial invitation to the public to attend the Sunday School at 10 a.m. and worship hour at 11 a.m. Also lunch at 12:45 p.m. and the afternoon singing will begin at 1:45 p.m.

Special guests of the local organization will be the women of the Cornwell Foursquare and the Community Foursquare Churches.

The theme of the meeting will be "Open Your Mind Eyes." Speakers will be members of the various participating churches.

The meeting will celebrate the birthday of the founder of the Foursquare Church, Almee Semple McPherson.

All women of the area are invited.

1972 Taxes

97 Per Cent Collected

Mooreville collected more than 97 per cent of its 1972 property tax levy.

Town Manager Tate Mills, who also serves as tax collector, gave the Town Board a report on the 1972 property tax levy.

The slow-moving commercial division could see $1,000, but chairman Larry Putnam said his workers are making a big push to get their collections completed in the next few days.

The professional division reported $1,070, and $834 has been turned in by the public employee's division. The rural division had $745 early this week.

Kleber reportedly told police that he had planned to ram a few more cars, "dumb" his auto, walk home, and then call police to report his car stolen.

"We've had him in here before for traffic violations," the police chief noted, "but never anything like this."

Motorist Enjoys

'Smashing' Time In 56-Car Slam

The day had become too quiet, too boring for the 25-year-old motorist in Calumet Park, Ill., so he decided to live on things up by sideswiping 58 parked cars.

"I guess he must have set some kind of record," said Police Chief Robert Frodin, after Andrew Kleber began his destructive drive at 4:40 a.m. He was arrested about 10 minutes and two miles later.

"I thought we were going to have a lynch mob at our police station when the car owners started showing up," the police chief remarked. "They were really hot. Some of the cars had $300 to $400 damage."

Kleber reportedly told police that he had planned to ram a few more cars, "dumb" his auto, walk home, and then call police to report his car stolen.
