The 2:00 p.m. ceremony, performed by the Reverend Joel Keys, took place at St. John's Episcopal Church in Lynchburg.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. Pauline Brawley Sloop of Troutman and the late Homer Albertson of Lynchburg, VA. The groom is the grandson of Mrs. William Wardman of Hatch, New Mexico and Mrs. Frank Golebiewski of Wilmington, Delaware. The altar of the sanctuary was decorated with two matching arrangements of white snapdragons, white spider mums and rubrum lilies.

Organist Allen Huszti presented the following prelude selections: Chorale: Glory Now To Thee Be Given, Jesus, Joy of Man's Desiring and Prelude C Minor, all by Bach. Attendees processed to Trumpet Tune in D Major by Purcell and the bride entered to Allegro Maestoso in E-flat Major by Mendelssohn. The recessional was Toccata from Symphony No. 5, Widor.

Escorted and given in marriage by her father, the bride wore her mother's wedding gown. A Murray Hamburg design, the gown of candlelight duchess taffeta was fashioned with a long fitted basque waist, long sleeves, and a portrait neckline, edged in a band of heavily embroidered braid. The softly pleated circular cut skirt fell into a graceful cathedral train.

Her fingertip veil of bridal illusion was held in place on a coronet of embroidered medallions and taffeta. The bride carried a cascade of white roses with Stephanotis and rubrum lilies.

Marie Wood, Mrs. S. Terrell Daniel and Miss Deanne Wardman, sister of the groom. All of the attendants wore tea length royal blue dresses and a garland of Stephanotis and matching ribbons in their hair. They carried bouquets of rubrum lilies and alstroemerias.

The groom's best man was Walter Peter Hockett of Fairfax, VA. Ushers were Thomas Howard Albertson Jr. of Germantown, MD, brother of the bride; Michael Wade Ketter and Todd William Young, both of Fairfax, VA.

The groom, groomsmen and fathers of the bride couple added boutonnieres of white roses to their attire. The bride's mother selected a tea length gown of pink linen with lace bordering the neck, sleeves and hemline. The groom's mother chose a street-length dress in a deep rose color. Their corsages were white phalaenopsis orchids.

Grandmothers of the bride couple were remembered with corsages of white cymbidium orchids and the bride's grandmother received a white rose boutonniere.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Oakwood Country Club. Beautiful appointments were used in the reception area and of special beauty on the two mantles were matching arrangements of rubrum lilies, white spider mums, dahlias in celestial colors, hydrangeas and alstroemerias in shades of pink.

The five-tiered wedding cake with an open tier was topped with a bouquet of rubrum lilies and placed on a round table at a focal point in the room.

Miss Starnes Becomes Bride Of Mr. London At First Presbyterian

Cindy Michelle Starnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Caldwell of 1421 North Main Street, Mooreville and Rodney Eugene London, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daryl London of 144 Kerr Street, Mooreville, were united in marriage on Saturday, September 19. The 2:30 p.m. ceremony took place at the First Presbyterian Church of Mooreville with the Reverend Ed Lewis officiating.

The sanctuary of the church was ornamented beautifully with the bride being appointed with double seven-branched candelabra holding French lavender tapers and accented with English ivy and purple dogwood blossoms. Two baskets of mixed white flowers with purple lilies graced the altar while pews were marked with lavender topped calladium leaves, lavender magnolia blossoms and lavender bows. All of the flowers were in silk.

Organist Jerry McGuire and soloist Debbie Szabo presented a program of wedding music: Organ selections were Fanfare, Purcell; Prelude and Fugue in G, Bach; Come Thou Fount, arr. Marx, Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring, Bach; Allegro, Handel; Psalms XIX, Marcello and Air by Bach.

Vocal selections were One Hand, One Heart, Paris Angelique and The Lord's Prayer for the benediction.

Kathi Shuler, aunt of the bride, presided at the guest register which was decorated with a plum pen, lavender magnolia blossoms and foliage.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in an elegant gown by Eve of Midway. The white silk organza gown was lavishly embroidered with schiffli lace with Venice lace accents at the high open neckline with mandarin collar. The bodice was also embellished with dangling pearls and crystallines. Short sleeves were designed of ruffled tiered embroidered organza with scalloped edge. Venice lace was featured at the fitted bodice waistline and matching embroidery adorned the chapel train. A ruffled border on the train completed the style of the gown.

Her waist length tulle veil was held in place by a triple spray of silk and organza flowers with pearl bead accents. The headpiece was fashioned and designed by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Peggy Shuler. She carried a free-form cascade of silk lavender fancy bearded iris, miniature orchid sprays, English ivy, lily leaves, fern fronds, and lavender and white satin ribbons.

The bride carried a lavender floral cord handkerchief belonging to her great-grandmother, Mrs. S. Compton for something old and white lace-edged handkerchief belonging to the bride since her childhood was entwined into her bridal bouquet; her gown was for something new; pearl and diamond earrings for something borrowed from her aunt, Peggy Shuler and a blue satin and lace garter for something blue.

Mrs. Mel Moore was matron of honor. She wore a deep rose colored colonial styled dress with off-the-shoulder neckline in a fitted bodice and bell skirt with lace tiers. She wore an organza floral wreath with silk lavender rosettes and tiny lavender satin ribbons at the hair.

The headpiece was worn low on the forehead. She carried a free form cascade of silk lavender magnolia blossoms, lavender lilies, purple dogwood, English ivy, lily leaves and fern foliage.

Bridesmaids were Holli Shuler, cousin of the bride; Stephanie London, sister of the groom; and Amy Moore. Their dresses were fashioned in pale pink and in colonial style similar to the matron of honor. They, too, carried free-form cascades identical to the honor attendant with the exception of no magnolia blossoms.

The groom's father was best man and ushers were Chad Caldwell, brother of the bride; Mike Moore, cousin of the groom and Ryan London, brother of the groom.

The groom's boutonniere was composed of two white silk roses with a sprig of lavender flowers. The best man's boutonniere was a single pink silk rosebud with baby's breath and the ushers and father of the bride had boutonnières of single pink rosebuds.

The bride's mother wore a mauve street length dress with sheer sleeves and knife pleated skirt. The groom's mother selected a lavender street length dress with long sleeves and belted at the waistline. Both of the mothers complimented their attire with corsages of pink silk carnations adorned with white lace bows.

Grandparents of the bride couple, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Caldwell, Mrs. Hilda Shuler, Mrs. Mary Dillow, Mrs. Ethel London and Mr. and Mrs. John C. Jackson were remembered with corsages and boutonnières of white silk carnations.

All of the flowers and decorations were designed by Mrs. Peggy Shuler, aunt of the bride and owner of The Personal Touch. Mrs. Shuler also directed the wedding.

All those taking part in the wedding and reception in any way were remembered with floral corsages and boutonnières.
