
Stakely, second from right, other Troop 371 members accept prize

Girl Scout ROBOT Event Draws Crowd; Troop 371 Wins Award

More than 1,700 people attended the Catawba Valley Area Girl Scout Council's "Reaching Out Beyond Our Technology" event held recently at Hickory's Clement Center.

The day-long math and science event was co-sponsored by the Catawba Science Center and featured a variety of hands-on exhibits and displays.

"We were quite pleased with the turnout, "Dr. John Leach, a Girl Scout volunteer who helped plan the event, said, "and most importantly, everybody had a marvelous time."

In addition to just taking part in the event, Cadette Troop 371 from Mooresville took home a second place prize for their exhibit on space. Christine Stakely accepted the award for the Troop accompanied by other Troop members.

The event was the culmination of nearly a year of Girl Scout troop emphases on math and science. Troops and individual Girl Scouts completed a variety of requirements to earn special ROBOT patches and many prepared and displayed projects during the recent event. The projects were judged and prizes were awarded to troops and individuals in each Girl Scout age level.

"ROBOT was designed to show that math and science can be fun for the entire family," explains Deb Dowling, Girl Scout program services director who coordinated the event.

Area businesses including Duke Power, Catawba Memeorial Hospital, Centel, White Business Machines, Catawba Valley Cable TV, Radio Shack, Apple Computer and the Byte Shop participated with displays and hands-on activities.

ROBOT also featured physics shows by Appalachian State University, chemistry demonstrations by the Catawba Science Center and hands-on areas by the local Gem and Mineral Club and the Astronomy Club.

The Catawba Valley area Girl Scout Council is a United Way agency serving girls in Alexander, Ashe, Burke, Caldwell, Catawba, Iredell and Watauga Counties.

Local TALK Group Will Meet Tues.

Mooresville's TALK group will hold its next session April 16.

The group — Talk About Loving Kids — is a new parent support group sponsored by the Mooresville Graded School District. At each meeting, new ideas about how to handle some of the problems parents face are discussed.

At Tuesday's meeting, which will last from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. at the South Elementary School cafeteria, the guest speaker will be Dr. Dewitt Cosby.

Cosby is a highly-respected psychologist who has a private practice in Davidson. Her topic for the meeting will be "Family Relationships."

She will include in the presentation information about sibling rivalry, impact of marital problems on children and child relationships with a single parent.

Everyone is invited to participate in the TALK meeting. Parents of a child (ages two to 18) who has low self-esteem, a learning disability or any other problem that causes home or school difficulties are especially encouraged to take part.

The organization usually meets on the second Tuesday night of each month. (This month's meeting was back up due to Cosby's schedule).

Next month's meeting will be held May 14 and Elaine Crummett, counselor for the Tri-County Mental Health Clinic, will present a program on Attention Deficit Disorders.
