up to North Main Street. The road would run through property marked for the development, which will include a shopping center and, eventually, a residential subdivision.

The board members decided to table the request until they can obtain more information from the developer, Alan Brawley. Brawley was not at Monday's meeting.

The main issue discussed by the board was whether the connector road should loop up to North Main Street or continue straight to link with the Hillcrest neighborhood.

The item will be reviewed at future board meetings.

Also Monday, the board voted to hold a public hearing at its Aug. 5 meeting on proposed rezoning along the north side of West McLelland Avenue.

Several pieces of property across from Woods Elementary School are currently zoned General Industrial or High Density Residential (R-6). The proposal is to change the zoning in that area to Neighborhood Business.

The final plat for Sunshine Estates, a 30-lot subdivision off Rhinehardt Road on Ketchie Drive, was also approved by the town at Monday's meeting. Roads in the proposed development had been questioned, but the project was approved after the town's public works director determined that the works met town standards.

Jones

Greenville, Washington and points east.

Dick Jones? Yes, Mooresville's Dick Jones, son of the Mrs. Sally Jones of 309 East Pressley Ave. and the late Wiley Jones. Dick Jones, husband of Lillian, also a Mooresville native and daughter of the late Neel and Julia Chester.

For the past 20 years the Joneses have lived in Washington while Dick was on the staff of WITN-TV there. He retired from the station last year, and a month later cancer was found in his esophagus. Later last year, the liver malignancy was diagnosed.

But before Dick Jones became a familiar face and voice on WITN-TV his voice was familiar to millions of auto race fans. He began his radio career in high school as a weekend announcer on WHIP. He especially enjoyed sports announcing, and he moved easily into stock car racing.

In recognition of his sports-related activities, a baseball/softball field in Washington is named for him. He was named North Carolina Sportscaster of the Year in 1974, Outstanding Sportswriter of the Year in 1982, N.C. Farm Broadcaster for 1984 and he has received numerous awards from the National Motorsports Press Association. For many years, he did radio and television broadcast of East Carolina University sports events.

During seven of his 24 years in radio work in racing, he was with Universal Racing Network, and he was anchor announcer on many NASCAR events. He earned the admiration of drivers and everyone else associated with the sport, as expressed by their participation in the tribute to him last week.

revenues. The committee will consist of two representatives from the Mooresville-South Iredell Chamber of Commerce, two representatives of the local travel and tourism industry and one town board member.

The committee's job will be to recommend ways to use the tax revenues to promote travel and tourism in the area, but all disbursements from the fund will be subject to approval by the town board.

Monday night, the board adopted the local tax, but did not make appointments to the committee. Those appointments will be made as soon as possible so the room tax program can begin.

Although no exact figures are possible, Chamber representatives believe that in its first year the room tax will generate up to $30,000. That total should grow as more motel rooms are added in the Mooresville area.

The occupancy tax is the result of several months of work at the local level and in Raleigh. The Chamber first suggested the tax as a way to finance the expanding travel and tourism program. The Mooresville Downtown Commission, an agency designed to promote the downtown business district, added its support and the recommendation was forwarded to Rep. Robert Brawley of Mooresville.

Brawley introduced the bill and after some debates about how the tax revenues should be spent, the bill was ratified by the General Assembly in mid-June.

Moors

Stanly.

But all three of those wins came in the best-of-five playoffs series, keeping Post 66 hopes of alive of successfully defending the SD-Area III tournament title captured last summer.

With the win, the Moors, now 11-10 against league foes and 12-11 overall, move into second-round postseason play opposite regular-season champion and top-seeded Mocksville-Davie.

Like Stanly County, Mocksville-Davie also swept past Mooresville in regular-season play, winning both games.

Play in that best-of-five series began in Mocksville Tuesday night.

Mooresville will serve as the host for this (Wednesday) evening's game two, as well as a game four, if needed.

In Albemarle Monday night, it was the visitors who starved off elimination, bouncing back from a pair of early deficits — 1-0 after two innings and 2-1 after three — with that four-run fourth that put the Moors ahead to stay.

Mooresville added a single run in the fifth inning and two more in the sixth for an 8-2 lead. Stanly chipped a run off the spread with its last run of the season in the last of the seventh.

Bowers, a lefthander, went the distance to get the win, allowing three runs on six hits while striking out 12. He is a rising junior at Mooresville High.

South Iredell product Mike Cummings delivered four hits to the winning cause, and he drove home three runs, while Bill McLaughlin, of West Rowan, piled up three hits and plated a teammate.

Though Mooresville and Stanly County tied in the final league standings, it was Post 66 that was saddled with the lower of the two seeds.

As a result, the Moors became the only lower seeded squad to survive the league's opening-round of postseason play.

Post 66 will battle top-ranked Mocksville Davie, with that winner moving into the finals of the SD-Area III playoffs next week.

All games in the series will feature 7:45 p.m. starts, with the Moors playing their home games on the Mooresville Senior High School field.

1987 decisions.

"I'm ready to eat crow," Randall said.

Street-wide standards and cul-de-sac standards will also be discussed and, more than likely, adopted at the Aug. 5 session.

Street-width proposals include minimum right-of-way requirements of 40 feet with curb and gutter and pavement width of 28 or 29 feet depending on the type of curbing required.

The cul-de-sac proposals call for a minimum right-of-way width of 50 feet and a pavement width of 40 feet.

EDDIE RAY HOLSHOUSER

Navy Salutes Holshouser

Mooresville native Eddie Ray Holshouser has been recognized as "1990 Sailor of the Year" at the Personnel Support Activity Detachment of the Naval Air Station in Norfolk, Va.

Holshouser, a petty officer, received a commendation that read, in part: "His personal contributions to this detachment's better business handling with customer demands have been the determining factor in the successful accomplishment of the workload for the entire Naval Air Station."

Holshouser, a Mooresville Senior High graduate, has been in the Navy since 1985. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ben Ray Holshouser, of Mooresville. He lives in Virginia Beach, Va. with his wife, Jo-Ann, and their three children.

MCC Center To Expand, Maybe

BILLIE MEEKS

Mitchell Community College's Mooresville Extension Center is shrinking, and Dr. Douglas Eason, Mitchell College's president, wants money from the county to make it grow.

The Iredell County Board of Commissioners is considering a request by the MCC Board of Directors for $526,760 to finance immediate improvements to the Mooresville center.

Those improvements include $37,000 to purchase land for parking; $70,000 to pave the land; $23,760 in architect's fees; and $396,000 for a 7,200 square foot classroom and laboratory building.

Mitchell officials requested $350,000 in renovation funds for the Mooresville center, but, actual estimates would raise the needed amount to more than $500,000, Eason said.

Projected growth studies show that Mooresville will contiue to grow rapidly, and, Eason said, the extension center will need to expand to serve increased demand for education.

"My objective is to serve a need, any where in the county that we have a need," Eason said this morning.

Eason said he felt the county commissioners were committed to Mitchell's expansion.

But, he said, because money is scarce at the federal, state and local government levels, this year may not be the year the Mooresville center begins to expand.

Meanwhile, the Mooresville center will begin an aggressive public relations campaign, to increase use of the center.

A recent study by a community college consultant found that the Mooresville center, which has been open for 10 years, suffers from a lack of community visability. Many people do not know that the Mooresville center, 219 N. Academy St., exists.

Center director Mike Tucker has beeen working with the state Department of Transportation to negotiate signs at nearby interstate exits, pointing the way to the center.

The public relations campaign also will include billboards, radio announcements and a mass mailing.

Mitchell Gets State Child Care Grant

Mitchell Community College in Statesville has received a $38,525 state grant to pay child care expenses for more than 15 students.

Mitchell's financial aid officers said they hope to serve 15 full-time students and five part-time students with the child care grant. The program will begin providing child care money to eligible students by the beginning of the 1991 fall quarter.

Students who are enrolled in the technical or vocational programs at the college and who are single parents are eligible for the program.

To apply for child care assistance, students must choose a licensed daycare center or family care home. Financial aid officers at the college will then provide money for daycare expenses, based on need.

Students' daycare costs will be partially or fully paid. First priority will be given to students who do not receive any federal or state money for child care.

Dunbar Alumni Meet Sunday

Dr. Roscoe W. Ramsey Jr. will be the principal speaker July 7 during a 10:30 a.m. meeting of Dunbar High School alumni in the gymnasium of Woods School.

Ramsey, who practices medicine in Williamburg, Va., grew up in Mooresville and he is a graduate of Dunbar, a high school until it became Woods middle school in 1968. His father, a minister, lives here. His mother is deceased.

Ramsey and his wife, Patricia, have three children. The family lives in Williamsburg.

Town Zoning Control Next For New Areas

After assorted annexations, the Mooresville Town Board is moving ahead to establish zoning jurisdiction over newly-acquired territories.

Monday night, the board voted to schedule a public hearing on zoning guideline proposals for property annexed on June 30, the last day of fiscal year 1990-91. The town has 60 days from the time of annexation to put municipal zoning designations in place.

The majority of the satellite-annexed tracts marked for new zoning regulations are in the vicinity of the Interstate 77/N.C. 150 intersection and had previously been zoned by the county. The public hearing, scheduled for the board's Aug. 5 meeting, will be held to assign various town zoning rules to the tracts.

Seven of the properties are marked for Exclusive Industrial designation. Those properties are:

•Moroso Performance, in the Lakeside Industrial Park in the southwest quadrant of the N.C. 150/I-77 exchange.

•SFS Associates (Spectrum Financial Services), in the South Iredell Industrial Park off Mazeppa Road.

•Lakeside Partnership (KE Trading), Lakeside Park.

•Thomas R and Carolyn Summerville (J-Bear No. 2), Lakeside Park.

•NGK Ceramics, South Iredell Industrial Park.

•Robert O. Ebert (Aerolite), Lakeside Park.

•Jerry Keller, a multi-tenant development, on N.C. 150 just west of I-77.

Properties marked for Highway Business designation:

•S & S Properties (Desco), northeast quadrant of the N.C. 150/I-77 intersection.

•Mooresville Festival Shopping Center, N.C. 150/I-77.

•W, D & G Enterprises (Mooresville Industrial Supply) Lakeside Park.

•Duke Power Company, Talbert Road.

•One Stop Associates, N.C. 150 west of I-77.

•J. McDonald Williams and others (Crowe-Charlotte Retail), Lakeside Park.

•James Jennings (Lake Norman Realty multi-tenant development), at Talbert Road and Brawley School Road.

•Richard W. and Constance Keffer (Randy Marion automobile dealership), N.C. 150 west.

Property owned by Mary Hager at the intersection of Talbert Road and Brawley School Road is also in the new zoning proposals. That property is marked for Medium Density Residential use.

The properties had been approved for satellite annexation at various times throughout the year, but were not officially annexed until the end of the fiscal year. By completing the annexations at one time, the town simplifies the accompanying paperwork required to determine reimbursements to rural fire departments.

Mitchell Position For Meeks

Billie A. Meeks has assumed her duties as dean of student development at Mitchell Community College in Statesville.

Meeks was named to the position by members of Mitchell's board of trustees as a successor to Kenneth Bradshaw who has retired.

She received a master of education degree in guidance and counseling from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. Over the years, she had done additional graduate study at North Carolina State University in Raleigh and at Appalachian State University.

Since 1982, she has been dean of student services at Western Piedmont Community College in Morganton.

In that capacity, she was responsible for recruiting, admission, financial aid, veterans services, registration, student activities, career and academic counseling, testing, services for special population, services for handicapped students, student grievances and due process procedures. She also was responsible for development and implementation of student service objectives in institutional planning process, and for developing and administering the regular state budget as well as budgets for special grants.

Meeks is active in numerous professional organizations.

Len Sullivan's Shucks

Classified power

Cary Johnston placed a "for sale" classified in the June 12 paper to move two used room air conditioners, and she said run it six weeks.

No sooner did her ad hit the light of print than her pessimism dissolved in a deluge of response. She sold both A/Cs immediately. She called June 18 to stop the ad, but, alas and alack, the classified pages for our June 19 edition already had gone to press.

She called last Wednesday afternoon: "Please, please cancel the ad. I haven't seen this week's paper, but it must be in there. I'm getting calls all hours of the day and night. I could have sold 50 air conditioners by now."

Sorry 'bout that, Cary. Your ad did not appear in last week's paper. You're still getting carry-over contacts. But, hey, we take our Tribune classifieds-power endorsements where we find them.

Gary and Mary Sullivan came here from Florida in the mid-60s, and they took to this place like...well, like everybody who moves here from anywhere. We made contact because, prior to them, we were the only Sullivans in town, so the two families began getting one another's bills — and followup phone calls about the value of good credit and when service would be cut off.

Gary said he'd never met folks as friendly and helpful as Tar Heels. He wanted to know why we didn't have a Wachovia branch. He couldn't resist the name, and he felt a bit disloyal banking out of town.

"But," he said, "you know you can't go wrong with a bank named 'Watch Over You.'"

I knew how the name is pronounced, but not until Sunday, reading about Wachovia's soon-to-retire chief exec, did I learn why. Its origin is in line with Gary's sense of security:

"Founded in 1879, Wachovia took its name from the Wachau Valley in central Europe, where Moravians who settled Winston-Salem once found sanctuary against persecution. Moravians guarded themselves against an uncertain future with thriftiness, hard work and communal spirit."

Which is an appropriate time for a reminder of how Monbo (as in East) got its name: investors who established the first textile mill there (don't look now, its remains are at the bottom of Lake Norman) called it Mont Beau, and, as Southern Americanizations go, that's a very short leap.

Clear communication is important. A.C. Snow passed along these definitions of medical terms in his "Sno' Foolin'" in The News and Observer of Raleigh:

Caesarean section — a district in Rome; coma — a punctuation mark; dilate — to live long; G.I. series — baseball games involving teams of soldiers; Nitrate — lower than the day rate; node — was aware of; varicose veins — veins that are close together; colic — a sheep dog; post-operative — a letter carrier; outpatient — a person who has fainted.

Dear WDAV, reference your "classical lovers' quiz:"

Purely out of idle (as in non-participatory) curiosity: Do you take lovers' word for it? Do you hold tryouts? Could you give us a sample question?

And I thought Spermmobile visits were the most exciting activity on campus. Second reaction: we all expected backlash to Presbyterians' aborted position paper on human(?) sexuality, but this could be a bit much.

I figure I've got a case if those two clowns in Chapel Hill get anywhere with suing Publishers' Clearinghouse for telling them — and how many million others?, — they'd won a cool $1 million.

Right there on the front of the box containing the English Leather deodorant stick, in big yellow type against a red background, "$1 off next purchase, coupon inside." Hey, save it, sucker, that's almost half the cost.

Uh oh. Coupon says, SAVE $1 [illegible] (that deceptive marketing or what?
