Red Cross To Conduct CPR Class

The South Iredell Red Cross Chapter will sponsor a cardiopulmonary resuscitation class at the War Memorial May 13-16. Instruction will be offered each day from 7 p.m. until 10 p.m.

Judy Phillips will be the instructor, according to Gayle Williams, chapter executive. She said places still are open for the CPR class.

Williams also reminded this week that various other Red Cross-sponsored training programs are being planned. These include classes in CPR for adults and infants, standard first aid, swimming and water safety.

Persons interested in these and other Red Cross services should contact Williams at the chapter office on the second floor of the Municipal Building.

William said she also welcomes inquiries from persons interested in Red Cross volunteer work.

Tournament-Caliber Competition Sparks Initial Players Outing

Organizers of the inaugural Mooresville Players Golf Outing shyed away from using the word "tournament" to describe their event.

"Tournament sounds too formal," urged John Gardner, one of the event's ringleaders. "We want everyone to have fun, to enjoy themselves. Sometimes you can't do that in a tournament."

But Gardner forgot to tell that to the players.

A total of 26 twosomes comprised the field for the attraction not so much unique in its presence but rather in its playing format.

The attraction, staged on Mooresville's Municipal Golf Course, took place over the span of two days and incorporated a pair of different playing formats.

Saturday's opening round, sprinkled with intermittent showers, unfolded with the two-player teams adhering to the familiar best-ball playing procedure.

Under this style of play, the best score registered by the individual players on each hole is used as the team's score.

Then on Sunday, the teams applied a captain's choice format to their rounds.

Under this procedure, all shots are played from the best lie of each previous shot, giving players identical shots on every hole.

As expected, Sunday's rounds were filled with scores lower than those posted on Saturday.

To assist with flighting purposes, opening-round scores were adjusted somewhat by a tournament committee.

Under the adjustment ruling, made clear before the competition began, the worst three holes played by each team were adjusted to par or better.

In the championship flight, the team of David Little and Johnny Moffett, playing in their second straight weekend affair as teammates, posted the best round of the attraction Sunday, with a captain's choice total of nine-under par 63.

In the third and final flight, teammates Jim Brown and Jeff Richardson enjoyed a two-stroke victory that was accounted for during Saturday's first round.

They opened with an 87 that put them atop the flight leader board and backed it by posting a co-flight best 78 Sunday to wind up at 163 for the weekend.

On the on-card playoff, Hagenmeyer and Dunkin were declared flight winners.

Who Won? Who Cares, Chamber's Golf Outing Promotes Comraderie

Who won?

Who cared?

Certainly not the majority of those who participated in the annual Mooresville-South Iredell Chamber of Commerce's Golf Outing last week.

The Mooresville-South Iredell and Greater Statesville chambers combine forces to stage such an attraction on a yearly basis. The two branches take turns serving as hosts for the outings.

Last Wednesday, it was the Mooresville-South Iredell Chamber's turn to play host.

It had plenty of help. With assistance from more than a handful of area sponsors, the 18-hole attraction unfolded without a hitch, unless you count a sometimes bothersome breeze-turned-wind that caused some of the more comforting holes on the spreading, lakeside Mallard Head County Club course to become downright ornery.

Those primarily banking-oriented businesses assisting as sponsors last week included Lincoln Bank, Citizens Savings & Loan, C.K. Federal, Mooresville Federal Savings & Loan, First Union, NCNB, and Lake Norman Regional Medical Center.

As in the past, the competition itself took a back seat to the camaraderie being promoted by the mid-week attraction. Hence, its taking place in mid-week.

At the exact time when work begins piling up and wearing down its workweek, the chambers extended invitations to members and invited guests to flee offices, factories and sales routes for an afternoon of worrying about nothing more than which way a particular putt may break.

Players signed up on an individual basis and were teamed up in four-player groups.

Players were lucky to be familiar with one other member of their team when play began. But when it was complete, they counted all team members as newfound acquaintances.

Adding to the pleasure of the play was the format followed during it.

Competition took the shape of captain's choice, which allows room for all four players on a team to contribute whether they want to or not.

Under this format, each shot on a hole is hit from the best lie resulting from each previous shot. And all four players in the group hit the shot from the same spot, giving each the change to improve a team's position.

Under this procedure, in addition to enabling all team members to contribute, it also leads to low scoring. Rounds of even par, the ideal goal of every golfer, were the exception Wednesday instead of the rule.

For the most part, scores, although kept, were not important. But for the sake of competing, they were recorded.

A total of 29 teams, each comprised of four players who primarily hailed from the Mooresville and Statesville area, attacked the Mallard Head course that had recovered well from a previous weekend of nearly two inches of rain.

When the scores were posted, a three-way tie existed in first place, all among teams that toured the 6,442-yard course in identical, eight-under par rounds of 64.

Well, nearly identical. As it turned out, the ties were broken by use of an on-card playoff procedure. In following this course, a hole was selected at random from among the 18 available. The playoff then began at that hole, comparing the scores of each team until one of the emerged a winner.

As it turned out, the team captained by David Steele emerged as the first-place finisher, boosted by a birdie-eagle-birdie binge over its first three holes. Other first-place teammates included William Long, Barry Farmer, and Mark Brady.

The team captained by Steve Harwell, consisting of Alvin Huffman, Dennis Spry and Stuart Patch, wound up second, followed by the third-place team commanded by Roy West and featuring Larry Johnson, Mike Campbell and Bob Cox.

All members of the three winning teams were presented with trophies as well as additional prizes donated by a host of secondary sponsors and contributors.

The awards ceremony followed what many in the field felt was the best part of the day, a catered barbecue meal presented by Lancaster's of Mooresville.

ADVERTISERS: Newspapers Tip the Scale In Your Favor

You be the judge. When you weigh the differences, other advertising mediums just don't carry the weight that newspaper advertising does.

BILLBOARDS - You'd have to stop traffic in order for customers to read your ad. Driving by at the speed limit doesn't leave much time to get your message across.

DIRECT MAIL - An open and shut case. Does your message get read or thrown away?

RADIO - Are your customers listening at the exact time and tuned in to the same station your message is airing?

Your advertising dollars are just too precious to waste, so put them where they'll get the best

NEWSPAPERS - Customers turn to newspapers for the advertising as well as the news. Your ads are current, visible and they'll be seen by our entire circulation. You'll get more mileage from your advertising, at a cost that's comparatively lower than any other medium.

YELLOW PAGES - There's your ad on page 735, sandwiched in among 15 other businesses just like yours. And there it sits all year long. Maybe someone'll see your ad, but if they're not looking for it, who knows?

TELEVISION - Will your customers still be in the room when your commercial comes on? If they're like most folks, they'll probably be raiding the refrigerator. And even if they do happen to catch your message, will they remember it ten minutes later?

USE THE NEWSPAPER that covers more local homes in the Mooresville area at less cost to you.
