Students' Newspapers Evaluated

Iredell County high school students are well served by their newspapers.

That point was made repeatedly by newspaper people who recently judged papers of the county's five high schools. The papers, their staffs and faculty sponsors were recognized May 2 during the Scholastic Press Awards banquet at Howard Johnson Inn in Statesville.

Student papers were evaluated in nine categories. In addition, an award went to an outstanding sponsor. This judging was based on nominations written by the students.

Dr. Tom Watts of the Iredell County school system's central administrative staff coordinated preparations for the awards program, and he served as master of ceremonies. Following a buffet, the group of 80 heard Judy Krumpler, newspaper sponsor at West Charlotte High, discuss qualifications and skills-developing for news gathering and reporting.

Judges then commented on their decisions and presented first-place and honorable-mention awards in the individual categories.

These papers received these awards:

•Statesville Senior High — first place in advertising, cartoons/art; honorable mentions in news, layout; and best single issue.

•North Iredell High — first place in news, editorial; honorable mention in sports, cartoons/art and features.

•Mooresville Senior High — honorable mention in ads.

•West Iredell — first place in layout, features; honorable mention in editorials and photography; outstanding sponsor Pat Turner.

•South Iredell High — first place in sports and photography; honorable mention, best single issue.

Judges were George Joye of Iredell News, Alice Brown of Statesville Record & Landmark, Len Sullivan of The Mooresville Tribune and Cindy Montgomery of Iredell Neighbors.

Park View School Staff Honors Volunteers

The satff of Park View Traditional and Optional Year Round Schools hosted a lovely tea last Thursday in honor of more than 90 volunteers, who shared their time in assisting with a variety of projects. An assortment of dainties, made by the teachers and their assistants, were served with a banana slush punch from a lace-covered table centered with an arrangement of fresh garden flowers. Following the tea, each volunteer received a certificate of appreciation presented by Cathy Hyatt, who coordinated the tea. Pictured at the tea table are, from right, Hyatt, Mrs. Linda Calhoun, volunteer coordinator, Dr. John Hough, principal of Park View Elementary, Mrs. Carol Carroll, principal of Optional Year Round and Mrs. Annette Barnes, volunteer coordinator.

How to beat HEART ATTACKS

A 30-minute video designed to help you recognize heart attack symptoms.

Every year, more than one million Americans have heart attacks... one third of these men and women die as a result.

But it doesn't have to be that way. More people would survive heart attacks if they knew how to recognize the warning signs or had called for help sooner.

The Carolinas Heart Emergency Network is pleased to offer "How To Beat Heart Attacks"- a 30-minute health information video that teaches individuals how to recognize the symptoms of a heart attack.

The video also provides the viewer with an important quiz to help evaluate his or her risk of having a heart attack. And most importantly, the video shows how many people have begun to win the battle against heart disease.

To receive a copy of this important video, and a copy of the quiz, please contact the network hospital in your area.

NOW HEAR THIS

Jill Howard M.Ed., CCC-A — Herb Weltreich M.D.

The Two-Ear System

When you stop to consider it, having our ears on the sides of the head is a very good design. It not only make us more aware of sounds, but cues us to the direction of the sound source. It also is something of a safeguard against loss of all hearing if one ear becomes severely impaired.

In many cases of hearing loss, testing reveals functional declines in both ears. As in the case of eye examinations, there usually are differences in the extent of impairment of each ear. The solution: Binaural hearing aids which are customized to enhance the specific hearing loss of each ear. Occasionally, a person who should use binaural devices wants to get by with a single aid in order to avoid the cost of the other aid. This is a mistake. When binaural aids are indicated, they can make a difference in sensing sound direction, help to separate desired sounds from unwanted background noise, and increase the overall pleasure of hearing.

After a person tries binaural aids, there seldom is any question as to their superiority over a single aid.

NASCAR Writer Whitlock Dies At His Home Here

Joseph Allen Whitlock, 55, well-known stock car racing writer, died Monday at his home on Allen-Kemp Road.

Whitlock, who worked for the Charlotte Motor Speedway as public relations director, was chief of the NASCAR news bureau at Daytona Beach, Fla.

He owned a public relations firm — Pro-Sports Inc.

"He was probably the best known and most respected writer the NASCAR-Winston Cup circuit ever had," according to Winston Cup Scene, a national weekly racing newspaper.

H.A. (Humpy) Wheeler, president of the Charlotte Motor Speedway, said:

"He had thousands of friends. I don't know anyone who disliked Joe. He just had a heart of gold."

It was while working at The State, a Columbia, S.C., newspaper that Whitlock met Jim Hunter, also a sports writer, who is the current NASCAR vice president.

"I sort of grew up with Joe in the sport of stock car racing," Hunter said.

Whitlock won the National Motor Sports Press Association award for his columns in the Winston Cup Scene.

Whitlock was born in Woodruff, S.C., on Jan. 12, 1936, a son of the late Joseph and Margaret Scott Whitlock.

Surviving are the wife, Carolyn Hudson Whitlock; one son, Mark Whitlock of Charlotte; one daughter, Margaret Whitlock of Charlotte; one sister, Mrs. Paulette Breem of California; and the step-mother, Mrs. Pauline Whitlock of Columbia, S.C.

A funeral for Whitlock will be conducted at 11 a.m. Friday in the chapel of the Almond, Raymer and McConnell Funeral Home in Huntersville, with Father Dale Grubba of Princeton, Wisc., officiating. Burial will be in the Greenlawn Cemetery in Columbia, S.C.

The family will receive friends at the Almond, Raymer and McConnell Funeral Home tomorrow (Thursday) evening from 7 p.m. until 8:30 p.m.

Mrs. Johnson Passes; Rites Last Friday
