Local Disaster Services Stressed

Disasters caused by tornadoes, hurricanes, floods, earthquakes or fires, are frequently in the news. People often believe that, "it can't happen here" or "it won't happen to me"; but the truth is that tornadoes, floods, hurricanes and fires can happen here in Mooresville and South Iredell.

Fortunately, there are some things everyone can do to avoid, prepare for, and cope with disaster-related emergencies long before a disaster threatens. Research shows that the majority of deaths in a disaster occur as a result of people doing the wrong thing or not knowing what to do.

For those hazards that have a long warning time, such as hurricanes and floods, it is often possible for people to reduce their risk if they stay tuned to local radio, television, or the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's Weather Radio, and evacuate when told to do so. When people wait too long before they respond, deaths and injuries can occur.

For hazards that strike with little or no warning, such as tornadoes or flash floods, people should learn to recognize the conditions that bring about the hazard, to stay tuned to local radio, television or NOAA Weather Radio for further instructions, and to go to a safe place immediately if a tornado or flash flood is reported or if they suspect it is already occurring.

There is virtually no warning for an earthquake, so only proper precautions and quick action can save lives.

The only real warning about fire might be with a smoke detector. Smoke detectors save lives.

For any hazards, planning and preparing ahead of time can equip us with the skills to deal with such powerful forces of nature.

The South Iredell chapter of the American Red Cross is busily preparing disaster services volunteer teams to help people in our community during and after a disaster. The Red Cross is also a valuable source of information on how to prepare for disasters and how to take safety measures when disasters occur.

The Red Cross is helping this community be prepared before disaster strikes by having an established disaster plan, training local disaster volunteers, and providing critical information to the public.

As part of that training, the Red Cross chapter is sponsoring a disaster services class on June 4. The class will be held at from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. at the Mooresville Graded School District office on North Main Street.

Dick Lowder, the chapter's disaster services chairman, has put together the plans for the course.

The focus of the training will be to provide fundamental information about disaster and its effects, and to outline the role of agencies in disaster relief. It will also introduce the participant to Red Cross Disaster Services.

The learning objectives for the program are to the teach the participant:

- What a disaster is and how it affects people and the community;
- The responsibility of the Red Cross and its governmental and non-governmental agencies in alleviating the effects of a disaster;
- The Red Cross authority, policies and regulations as they apply to disaster relief operations;
- What disaster assistance is available from the Red Cross to disaster victims and how the Red Cross provides that assistance;
- The importance and fundamentals of chapter preparedness planning.

Parcipants in the program will include Red Cross volunteer and paid staff members, other agency staff and community leader and the general public.

No preparation by the participants is necessary and the course is a pre-requisite for all other Red Cross disaster training.

If you are interested in becoming a Red Cross disaster services volunteer and want to attend the June 4 program, call the local chapter at 664-4908 and speak with Gayle Williams to register.

EVERYBODY'S SCIENCE

A Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture

Common household liquid detergents and cooking oils are teaming up to kill pesky garden insects.

Home gardeners already use liquid detergent against pests attacking plants. But adding cooking oil to the detergent, first tried by researchers on cotton, turns out to give a "lethal knockout to garden insect pests," says Thomas J. Henneberry, a U.S. Department of Agriculture insect expert.

"Hot Diggety...I Get To Pop All Of These Big Balloons"

Justin Lealand Noland was one year old on April 17. He is the son of Leigh Ann Parker of Mooresville and Lee Noland of Denver. His birthday cake featured "Garfield the Cat." His grandparents include Mrs. Minnie W. Parker and Fred Lee Parker, both of Mooresville and Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Noland of Charlotte and great-grandmother Mrs. Mary Ann Hutchinson Taylor of Richmond, VA.

And according to his colleague, George D. Bulter, "It's completely nontoxic, simple to mix and only costs one-third as much as commerical insecticides. Best of all, we have a pest spray that is 'clean' environmentally."

In tests, the solution killed aphids, whiteflies and spider mites—some of the worst plant enemies that commonly bedevil farmers as well as home gardeners. Testing was done by Henneberry and Butler, scientists in USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

Their formula: add one tablespoon of liquid dishwashing detergent to one cup of oil—peanut, safflower, corn, soybean or sunflower. Then, when you're ready to attack the pests, mix 1 to 2½ teaspoons of this prepared solution into one cup of water. Spray the diluted mixture on infested plants with a pump sprayer like the one from that empty bottle of window cleaner you were ready to throw away.

Henneberry and Butler have successfully used the mixture on eggplant, carrots, lettuce, Swiss chard, celery, watermelon, pepper and cucumber.

"The only disadvantage we found is that squash, cauliflower and red cabbage are sometimes hurt," says Bulter. "The oil may burn the tender leaves of these plants."

"Key to control," he adds, "is getting theoil-detergent mixture on the insects. Usually, these common pests seek protection from the sun and wind by hiding under plant leaves. Be careful to spray all leaf and stem surfaces with a light coat."

As with commerical insecticides, repeat treatment may be needed, he notes. He recommends checking for insects again about a week to ten days after each spray.

"We studied these kitchen remedies because our field studies showed that a fine spray of soybean oil killed aphids and whiteflies on cotton," says Henneberry at the ARS Western Cotton Research Laboratory, Phoenix, Ariz.

"We wanted to see what other insects various cooking oils could control." he said. Such oils can be toxic to insects, he says, while the dishwashing detergent helps the oil stick to the plant.
