Southern Compone Strategy

LABOR: Unemployment in Iredell county at mid-September was 2.3 per cent of the area's labor force, according to a statement by Wade Wilson, head of the Employment Security Commission in Statesville.

Less than one-third of this unemployed force were claiming unemployment insurance benefits, Wilson stated. Most of them were youths in the labor market and older persons seeking to enter or reenter the ranks of the employed.

A continued increase in employment, Wilson said, was expected. By mid-November 435 are expected to be needed, 310 in manufacturing and 125 in non-manufacturing. By mid-January, seasonal curtailment is expected to cut employment to 15 above the September level. Counter balancing trends are anticipated with 170 more needed in manufacturing, but 155 fewer needed in non-manufacturing. Textiles, apparel and metals indicate the greatest hiring needs in manufacturing.

At the end of September there were approximately 1,000 applications for employment on file. Many of the applicants, stated Wilson, live in adjoining counties. In most instances, it was pointed out, the labor supply in Iredell is proving adequate, except for skilled workers of all types who remain in short supply. More companies, stated Wilson, are now hiring Negroes to meet their needs for workers.

POLITICS: Within the past 10 days there has been an avalanche of opinion from so-called inside sources to the effect that Barry Goldwater will never get the Republican nomination for President. Most of these sources are leaning toward Richard Nixon, none toward Nelson Rockefeller.

Leonard Hall, one of the ablest and most experienced of the Republican pros, for instance, has turned Rockefeller down cold, dodged Goldwater, and is conferring with Nixon. Insider's Newsletter attaches much significance to this move.

Emmet John Hughes of Newsweek says the odds against Goldwater are overwhelming. He points out in quotation marks a long list of stupid statements the Arizona Senator has made that must come back to haunt him with the American public.

He is on record as calling the United Nations "nothing but a gigantic Communist front." He must face Southern voters in the showdown with the statement that Federal troops are justified to sustain national law.

In the Midwest he must face farmers with his long-standing demand for "prompt and final termination of the farm subsidy program."

Goldwater's record in foreign affairs sounds, according to the political pundits in some quarters, like the "rantings of a high school junior." It seethes, according to Hughes, "with scorn or distrust for the Western Alliance, the World Bank, disarmament plans—and even diplomatic relations with Russia."

It was Goldwater who recently demanded to link both the nuclear test ban and wheat shipments with demands that Russia tear down the Berlin Wall and move out of Cuba. And what would Goldwater do if Russia refused? As one Republican member of Congress put it, "He couldn't do a damned thing."

And it was Goldwater who paid tribute to the late Senator Joe McCarthy for making the United States "a safer, freer, more vigilant nation."

And it was Goldwater who said: "Fear the civilians—they're taking over."

And it was Goldwater who said, "One Eisenhower in a decade is enough." This will endeavor him to like at the Republican National Convention.

Goldwater's public utterances in recent months have been loaded with the type nonsense hard to sell to the American people. As a result, say the experts, the odds are narrowing on Nixon. Most Republican pros have marked Rockefeller off the list.

CORNPONE STRATEGY: Southern Senators and Congressmen, angry over the Kennedy civil rights moves, are using parliamentary tactics to slow the whole Kennedy program down to a snail's crawl. At the present rate of progress, it has been estimated it will be next July before much of this year's business gets off the agenda list.

As an example of these Southern tactics, Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield made a routine request for "unanimous consent" to dispense with the reading of the journal or minutes of the preceding day's activities. Traditionally, no Senator wants to hear a six-hour reading of speeches made by other Senators the day before. But Georgia's Senator Talmadge demanded a reading in full. It took up an entire day of the Senate's business.

The long-dormant cotton bill will get a place on the House docket next week.

This is the bill Southern textile manufacturers have been fighting to get into legislation for years. Chairman Harold Cooley of the House Agriculture Committee, after a day of meetings last week, won the agreement from party leaders to bring the bill to the House floor for action next week.

It will go to the floor with the powerful blessings of Speaker John McCormack, who has declared, "I'm enthusiastically for the bill and will do everything I can to get it passed." Cooley said he, too, believed the bill was the right way to go.

Uncle Dan From Doolie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I see by the papers where the Government has added 4,750 more folks to the payroll. First of all, the Post Office Department had to get 2,972 more workers to handle this new Zip business. I reckon this would come under the head of zipping up the zipper and unzipping the taxpayers. I was reading in the papers where one Washington column writer claims this new system ain't no improvement over the old one. He allowed, as how we needed the Zip about like his saddle horse needed a pair of bedroom shoes. Personal, Mister Editor, I don't know about such matters. I'm just telling you what the man said.

Then the Department of Agriculture took on 884 more employees. It seems it's going to take a heap more typers, clerks and book keepers to keep track of the wheat crop now that the farmers has took the controls off this item.

And the Treasury Department put on 884 more workers in July when the new budget went into effect. But the piece in the papers announced this was just normal procedure, that the higher the public debt gets, the more workers it takes to handle the figures.

It was also announced the Government research agencies wasn't spending but $14 billion this year. I was reading in another place in the papers where the 1963 farm crop for the whole nation will come to about $14 billion. It could be that them Congressmen was trying to balance the research program again the farm crop. If so, that's the first time the word "balance" has come up in this session of the Congress.

I was reciting these figures to the fellows at the country store Saturday night and the results was the usual split decision. Clem Webster, that crossed the New Frontier ahead of Kennedy, claimed all this was good for the country, kept employment high. Ed Doolie told me how we wasn't getting no place when high employment called for higher prices.

They ain't no compromise between Clem and Ed in politics. I recollect back under Truman when the papers had a little item about operating on a high priced cow to remove a 10-penny nail at one of them Government stock-breeding farms. A lot of this and that went on in the papers about the matter and it was put on the agenda at the country store one Saturday night. Clem argued the country didn't even have no prize cows till the Democrats took over under Franklin Roosevelt. Furthermore, allowed Clem, a 10-penny nail now and then might be good for a cow — make her milk rich with iron. But Ed wanted a investigation to see which one of them Democrats was throwing away good Government nails.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dan

Growing Financial Woes Outlined To Town Board

Money is one of the more brutal facts of life. We are as helpless without it as we are frustrated with it. The Town Board learned this week that the Mooresville Recreation Commission definitely is without it — helplessly and frustratingly without it.

ALBERT H. COPELAN, Chairman of the Recreation Commission.

Kiwanis Club Selects New Officer Slate

Albert H. Copelan, superintendent of the finishing department at Mooresville Mills, has been selected to serve as president of the Mooresville Kiwanis Club during 1964.

As president, he will succeed Homer A. Hump.

Other officers, who have been selected to serve with Copelan, are Willis L. Teeter, vice president and R. T. Brantley, treasurer. Two new directors also were selected, as follows: Grady Shoe and Dr. Norman Sholar.

Other directors of the civic organization are: Jack Sherrill, Dr. L. P. Trivette, Pete Coleman, George Hutto, and Max Nanney.

Town Plans To Do Own Zoning In Perimeter

Mooresville's "no-man's land" perimeter still is just that. A month ago, the Town Board asked the Iredell County Planning Board to extend its zoning authority to the town limits. By state statute, a multi-wide perimeter of the town is left to the zoning pleasure of the municipality.

Mooresville felt its local planning board would not be representative of interests in this area because none of its members lived in it. For this reason, and because the town felt some zoning authority in this fast-developing perimeter was essential, the town asked the county to include the area under its new zoning regulations.

The county was receptive to the idea, but there was a big hitch. The county planning board is limited in its power to a strip within three miles of Lake Norman. The county agreed, therefore, to zone for the town only that portion of the perimeter that lies within its zoning area. This would mean the county would only zone west of N. C. 115.

The town decided this week that

Special Guests At Synod's Celebration

Some 700 Presbyterians from a five-state area attended the 175th anniversary celebration of the organization of the Synod of the Carolinas at Centre Presbyterian Church Tuesday. Pictured, Dr. Frontis W. Johnston of Davidson, left, chairman of the anniversary program, goes over the day's program with the two keynote speakers: the Rev. William H. McCorkle of Bristol, Tenn., center, moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S., and Dr. Daniel W. Hollis of Columbia, S. C., professor of history at the University of South Carolina.

SYNOD OF THE CAROLINAS

175th Birthday Observed At Centre

Presbyterians, 700 strong, gathered at historic 189-year-old Centre Presbyterian Church in the Mount Mourne community Tuesday to celebrate the 175th anniversary of the organization of the Synod of the Carolinas.

It was at this church that the church-governing body was organized on November 5, 1788.

The day-long program, drew people from a five-state area, was sponsored by North Carolina, South Carolina, and Appalachia Synods.

Board Orders Remedy For Smog Along Shearer's Chapel Road

Mooresville has a smog problem, or, more accurately, Mooresville has the smog and Shearer's Chapel Road residents have the problem.

During the regular monthly meeting of the Town Board Monday night, a delegation of citizens who live along Shearer's Chapel Road appeared to lodge a complaint.

Newcombe acted as spokesman for the group. He explained the town is creating a problem throughout its community by burning garbage at the domestic waste treatment plant south of town. Prevailing winds carry soot and pungent odors from the burning pit southeast along Shearer's Chapel Road.

Newcombe said the smog clogs nostrils, stings lungs, coats windows and, in short, plays havoc generally, all the way to Shearer's Presbyterian Church, six miles from Mooresville.

"There's no point in us closing our windows," he said, "that stuff gets on everything, dishes, silverware. We're eating it, and we think it's unhealthy."

The town knew of the problem, and had called in county health department officials to study it. Both county and state health men said the situation did not constitute a health hazard, although the inconvenience and cleanliness problems were real indeed.

What has happened is this: Before the new treatment plant was built, the town burned refuse in
