Public Library Notes

The Greater Darkness by David Rubin. An American sociologist and his wife, in India on a teaching fellowship, have sharply different reactions to the land and people — while Bill Ames finds it a savage and repellent country, Carol is deeply moved by her Indian experiences. And while Bill looks vainly for love in an affair with an Anglo-Indian girl, Carol is drawn to a more rewarding relationship with a British doctor. A story of varying attitudes toward love, and the impact of a strange culture.

Action At Powder River by Ford Smith. A Western story of a young man who had left his home under a cloud of suspicion, seeking a new life elsewhere, but felt compelled to return and fight for vindication before any life would be worth living.

Stacy Tower by Robert H. K. Walter. Life at several levels in a Western state university, from student politicians maneuvering for power in the campus world, to faculty feuds, to the high-level struggle of a liberal professor forced into bitter compromises by his ambition to become president of the university. A faculty wife, wearied of poverty and her husband's absorption in his work, succumbs to an off-limits love affair; a girl's hopeless love for a professor drives her to desperation; a "panty raid" on a warm spring night develops into vicious rioting and violence.

The Dillinger Days by John Toland. Recap of the heyday of the bigtime bank robbers of the 1930s, notably John Dillinger, who came to a bad end in front of a midwestern theater under the guns of the FBI. The author gives a detailed account of Dillinger's career, and the depredations of other bad men and women of his time — Pretty Boy Floyd, Ma Barker, et al—and provides a vivid picture of an era of spectacular crime.

Robynn's Way by Jan Hathaway. Teen-age Romance about a high school junior who becomes so absorbed in her ambition to be a historian and record the romantic history of the early lumbering days in her region that she neglects her other studies, and avoids the outside activities of her classmates.

Folklore Of American Weather by Eric Sloane. The author and illustrator of several popular books on the subject of weather, Eric Sloane has compiled a book of American weather sayings and beliefs — both true and false. He has investigated origins, separated the many valuable pieces of weather lore from superstition or what he calls "jackass jingles," and arranged his findings in an alphabetical folklore dictionary, enabling the reader to find readily the signs involving stars, wind, dew, etc.—and labeled each entry: true (T), false (F), or possible (P). Illustrated by the author.

Grandmother And The Priests. Set in turn-of-the-century England, this tells of the adventures of 11 priests from all over the British Isles, who met at Grandmother Cullen's dinner table in Yorkshire. Little Rose Cullen listens wide-eyed as the visiting clergy entertain her glamorous grandmother with tales of saints and sinners, demons and angels, tyrants, murderers.

Wright Completes Basic Training

Glenn W. Wright, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur W. Wright of Mooresville, completed basic training November 1, at the Naval Training Center, San Diego, California.

The nine-week training includes naval orientation, history and organization, seamanship, ordnance and gunnery, military drill, physical fitness, first aid and survival.

During the training recruits receive tests and interviews which determine their future assignments in the Navy. Upon completing the program they are assigned to service schools for technical instruction or to ships and stations for on-the-job training in a Navy rating specialty.

Naval training produces the power in seapower by supplying qualified personnel to man the ships, aircraft and shore stations of today's Navy.

Giant Takes Job As Beachcomber

A 3-ton monster called a beach sanitizer is the latest and biggest in a series of machines which are mechanizing the art of beachcombing.

"The beach sanitizer cleans beaches at 4 miles an hour, sifting 1,800 pounds of sand a second," said E. E. Houston, general manager of the plant at Oxnard, Calif., where the machine is manufactured.

"On a popular beach, it can sift out about $14 in small change every hour and cover 40 acres a day," he added.

Laugh AND Learn

A sweet old lady, always eager to help the needy, spied a sad-looking old man standing on a street corner. She walked over to him, pressed a dollar into his hand and said, "Chin up."

The next day, on the same corner, the old man shuffled up to the lady and slipped ten dollars into her hand. "Nice picking," he said in a low voice. "He paid nine to one."

In a crowded streetcar one day a hill man sat opposite a young women whose skimpy skirt kept creeping up over her knees. She was fighting a steady battle trying to keep it down where it belonged.

The old man watched intently for a while then finally, as she gave her skirt a hard yank, he said to her:

"Don't stretch your gingham for me, miss; my weakness is liquor."

A notoriously nagging wife relented long enough to buy her husband two neckties for his birthday.

He found them on his dresser the next morning, put one of the gift ties on and made a grand entrance to breakfast.

"Humph!" his wife snorted when she saw him, "so you didn't like the other one, eh?"

THOUGHT FOR THIS WEEK . . .

—By—
REV. FLOYD TREXLER
Who is the meanest person in the world? The one who supports his meanness by the Bible.
Some of our forefathers sanctioned slavery by using certain Bible references. This was worse than the slavery itself. To sell a man is one thing. To blame God as the father of such action is another. The last is worse than the first.
Many in our own day use the Bible to justify their prejudice against another race. Disrespect for both Negroes and Jews has been justified by, "the Bible says . . ."
Many an alcoholic backs up his drinking with a Scripture verse; "Take a little wine for thy stomach's sake."
Some who dreadfully abuse their children justify their brutality from the Bible.
Folks who insist on being children of the Devil ought to stop using God to support their position. Remember, the Devil can quote Scripture. God tells us how to use His Word. "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." (II Timothy 2:15)
