opposition. They said it would increase costs, complications and confusion among the industry and the public.

Davis: "Where are these baskets made?"

Matthews: "In various areas."

Davis: "Mr. Chairman, I think the committee should find out how the industry feels before it takes any action."

Rep. James D. Weaver, R-Pa.: "There is a definite international movement toward the metric system. Shouldn't we be considering that?"

Rep. Neil Steahler, D-Mich.: "Mr. Chairman, would it be in order to have a few weeks delay to find out more about this?"

It was.

Russia, nor any of her satellite countries, ever put up a dime for the peace-keeping expenses in Africa or the Middle East. Yet these Soviet representatives demand equal time in the United Nations in their effort to quarterback all these operations.

Foreign minister Jaja Wachuku of the little country of Nigeria, a man still short on the polite language of diplomacy but long on common sense, told 'em off last week. Said he: "Those who are unwilling to contribute to the Congo operation, I think should discuss the Congo less."

Bravo, Jaja!

And while we're on little countries, we noted where San Marino signed the nuclear test ban treaty. San Marino, a small independent state in northeast Italy with a population less than the City of Statesville, has no public debt. It is also the only nation in the world to our knowledge that receives no U. S. aid. Fine country. We're glad to have San Marino aboard.

to point out that the zoning will not be retroactive, it will not affect businesses, industries or homes presently in the area. Needless to add, neither the town nor the county's zoning ordinance has any control over agricultural uses of the land.

"We feel very strongly," City Manager Guy Brooks said, "that there is a need for some reasonable development pattern in this area immediately surrounding the town proper. As the town grows, there is nowhere for it to expand but into this perimeter."

That Jim Mack Morrow, Harry Keeter and Young White, all of Troutman, have secured the resolution earmarked $1,000 in town funds to be added to a $2,000 federal grant to finance the survey that will be planned by Charles Davis, the town's planning consultant.

In other business during the meeting, the board authorized the purchase of 102 marking meter mechanisms for installation down town. The meters, which will cost $3,570, will accept nickels only. A police report noted that of 102 nine-year-old meters on Main Street, only three are in good working order, and that 69 are broken.

Brooks reported that 95 per cent of the 1962 tax levy has been collected, and he presented the 1963 tax roll that was accepted by the board. San Sims' application to own a taxicab was approved, as was a request by George Brannon for a public hearing on his taxicab owner's application.

Mooresville, are on the 10-member freddie zoning board must have figured into the town board's decision to have the county take over the perimeter. Freddie will not have county-wide zoning; its proposed ordinance, which county commissioners are expected to adopt soon, covers a strip along the lake shore. Roughly, the suggested ordinance applies to lands west of U. S. 31.

Perimeter zoning and annexation usually are discussed together, and they were by the board this week. Historically, Mooresville has been slow to annex. A few small outlying sections have been added to the original mile-from-the-depot limits, but then only on the unanimous request of the property owners involved.

During the meeting this week, the commissioners adopted a resolution requesting the N. C. Department of Conservation and Development to seek federal assistance in making a study of the feasibility of annexation here.
