Margaret Shannon, Atlanta Journal correspondent in Washington, reported Landrum's full speech in support of his bill. It was a honey! It should be put on the bulletin boards of every industrial plant in the country.

And speaking of Georgia, things are still rocking along down there. They do everything the hard way. For instance, we note this morning where they have increased the speed limit to 70 miles an hour on all interstate highways and that Brenda Meadows and Reese Downs were married atop a ferris wheel by Criminal Court Judge Charles Wofford. There's a wedding, we'd guess, that'll keep going round and round—or somepun.

We see by the papers where Congressman Tom Steed of Oklahoma, chairman of the House Subcommittee on Appropriations, threatened that if the Senate doesn't go along with his $169 million bill for Congressional expenses, he aims to "expose" a few things about the Senate. He darkly hints of such things as the Senators' "free supply of hair oil, fingernail polish and bath oil."

Wonderful, Congressman Steed! Tell us all about it. And if we find Senator Ervin has been getting any of that free hair oil business, we'll just blackmail Senator Sam with it for publicly endorsing Dan Moore.

blood-collection drive this year.

Homesley said donors again will be scheduled prior to the arrival of the bloodmobile. This makes one time saving, both for donors who are excused from work by giving blood, and for the bloodmobile staff that must handle the mountain of paper work involved in the collection of the blood.

In discussing the project next week, Homesley was lauded in his praise of community organizations and individuals for co-operation in the blood program.

Again next week, volunteers will assist in the operation of the bloodmobile. The Mooreville Home Demonstration Club will provide cookies for the occasion. Doctors who will give their time to the project are Dr. W. W. Painter, who will work from 11 a. m. until 1 p. m.; Dr. A. M. Henderson, from 1 p. m. until 3 p. m.; and Dr. Lewis Brinton, from 3 p. m. until 5 p. m.

ed; a nation that fails commits suicide."

Turning to the core of his address, the Rev. Mr. Hagai presented startling facts concerning the morals of the government, of the home, of education, and of the church.

"We are caught in a success spiral," he declared, "and you are supposed to say that your business is the best it has ever been and if right now your lawyer is drawing up your bankruptcy papers. Everything is supposed to be 'big and better' and now to carry out this image and this impression and to keep ourselves completely satisfied, that is, to pay allegiance to the God of our beliefs, we have to enjoy unnatural means."

"We turn to government to equalize our standard of living at the expense of hunting and refusing to own our own integrity and creativeness; when we ask government to do what free men through free society have done for free ideas, then we have prostituted the very free enterprise system that has given us our economic strength and in so doing have breached moral law."

Turning to the phase of his talk that dealt with the morals of the home, Mr. Hagai declared that "we now orphan more children annually because of domestic wars than we did in any peak year of their daddies dying in World War II or the Korean War."

"The home used to be the place of industry, piety, and democracy. Now they are dormitories by night and commodes by day. It is a place where you go to get ready to go somewhere else. The living room is that short-sprint ground between the bedroom where we dress and the front porch where someone is picking us up."

"In the classroom of today's schools," Mr. Hagai said, "we develop the social man, but he is a monstrosity. And, at the same time, we shrink the brain of the mental man."

"Time was," the speaker continued, "when the church stood as the center of truth to guide and change the morals of mankind. Now, we have relegated the church to a secondary public relations institution that stands on the side of the street, and the most furious it ever gets is to sort of slap the wrists a little bit and say, 'naughty, naughty,' but at the same time reminds us that boys will be boys and girls will be girls."

"We have tried to erase and eradicate one word from our vocabulary. It only has three letters but the three letters—sin—are the most important."

"God still says," the speaker pointed out, that "the wages of sin is death" and that "the soul that sinneth must die."

But, despite all this, there is hope, Mr. Hagai is sure. "We must regain our moral and spiritual direction," he stressed. "A spiritual revival begins with integrity," he said.

"That is," he continued, "it brings man face to face with God where he understands that he cannot hide from God. When he (man) becomes honest with God and looks at himself in the light of God, he knows he must have something more than is within himself. Then he turns to God. He begs for forgiveness of his sins."

In conclusion, the 32-year-old minister, who began preaching at the age of 12, stressed that fact that "we need a revival that will bring back integrity to the United States, that will bring back moral courage to the spaghetti backbone of our people, that will bring back the ideals that most of us say with our mouths but fail to practice with our hearts."

"There is a chance for America to survive," Mr. Hagai said, "provided we can find you, 'grass-roots' American citizens, everyday people, whose head and heart and hand can be dedicated to God, having a first-hand experience with the Lord." Mitchell Mack, the retiring president, presided over the meeting and introduced the speaker. The allocations, a total of $81,879,005.97 has been distributed, and the group of participating municipalities has grown from 388 to 420.

Chapter 136 (Sections 41-241.3) of the General Statutes of North Carolina requires that 8 per cent of the amount produced by one-half cent of the regular six cents per gallon State motor fuel tax be allocated annually to active and qualifying North Carolina municipalities. Cities and towns establish their eligibility by submitting qualifying data concerning their municipal functions necessary for the allocation. There are some legally incorporated towns in North Carolina which do not perform those municipal functions necessary for the allocation. These are some legally incorporated towns in North Carolina which do not perform those municipal functions necessary for the allocation.

The allocation is proportioned among the eligible and qualifying municipalities on the basis of relative tax rates and other sources of income. There are some legally incorporated towns in North Carolina which do not perform those municipal functions necessary for the allocation. These are some legally incorporated towns in North Carolina which do not perform those municipal functions necessary for the allocation.

The first State Street Aid allocation of $4,549,082.20 was paid to 388 municipalities in 1951. In the succeeding years, the annual increases in motor fuel consumption has caused similar heresies in the allocations. 1958 allocation of $6,079,232.00 to 420 municipalities shows a 78 per cent increase over the 1951 allocation. The number of participating municipalities has increased from 388 to 420 because of the incorporation of new towns and reactivation of inactive towns.

The meal, served buffet-style, was prepared by the Women of the Hopewell Methodist Church.

Hostesses Honors Bride-Elect

Mrs. Harold Howard, Sr. and Miss Brenda Sherill were the center of the gift table. A spiral candelabra with pink tapers was used as the centerpiece for the refreshment table. Green fruit punch containing candy frozen roses was served. Mrs. Harold Howard, Sr. decorated the cake squares, mints, and nuts were also served.

The hostesses presented the bride-elect a corsage of white carnations which complimented her pretty burgundy suit. They also presented her a place setting in her chosen china pattern.

Approximately 25 guests called and the honoree was the recipient of many lovely and useful gifts.

Mrs. Marlowe

Entertains

Chatter Club

Mrs. C. F. Marlowe was hostess to the members of the Chatter Club on Friday evening, September 13, at her home on the Charlotte Highway.

The group enjoyed Canasta and bridge during the evening and the hostess served a delicious desert course with coffee and Cola.

Those present were: Mesdames Bill Greene, J. D. Chamberlain, Ray Von Lyles, Everett Whitlow, and J. R. Cagle, Jr. Mrs. Helen Justice and Mrs. George Broyhill were visitors.

Senior Citizens

Have Outing

At Tanglewood

The Mooreville Senior Citizens enjoyed a picnic at Tanglewood Park near Winston Salem last Wednesday, September 11.

The group visited all the places of interest, including the old church. While at the church, they sang songs and had a short devotional period.

At the noon hour the group enjoyed a delicious picnic lunch after which they visited the beautiful rose gardens at the Reynolds estate.

Members enjoying the outing were: Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Belk, Mrs. Mary Small, Mrs. Ann Sherill, Mrs. Rosie Pharis, P. D. Lipe, Mrs. Hattie Hudspeh, Mrs. Allie Williams, Mrs. Anna Brackett, Mrs. Edith Hobbs, Mrs. Agnes McDonald, Mrs. Hattie Denney, Mrs. Lillie Harwell, Mrs. Elsie Lewis, Lee Sloop, Mrs. P. V. Brawley, Mrs. Etta Poston, Miss Winona Hethcox, and Carl Baber.

FIRST BAPTIST WMU HAS ANNUAL TEA

The annual WMU tea of the First Baptist Church was held Wednesday evening in the Blue Room of the church with Mrs. Jack Jefford, WMU social chairman, and the social chairman of each circle being in charge. Punch was poured during the evening by the WMU president, Mrs. Marvin Rummage and she is shown above serving Mrs. Harry Melchor and Mrs. M. F. Crouch, Sr. Special guests attending the tea were members of the freshman class and the staff of the Lowrance Hospital School of Nursing. After the tea, a most interesting film on the work of Dr. Kathleen Jones in Indonesia was presented. The refreshment table was appointed with an arrangement of lavender chrysanthemums in a silver bowl and lavender tapers were on either side of the arrangement.
