We Are Happy To Be Back

A family feud was precipitated at our house last week while I was convalescing from a hernia operation.

I was badly in need of a haircut when I entered the hospital. Ten days later I was as bushy as a fox's tail in December.

Actually, this thing starts about four years ago when we acquire Nina, a French poodle. There are more styles for trimming a French poodle than there are for arranging a teenager's hairdo. But trim 'em you must.

Marie gets the dog catalogue out and orders all the necessary paraphernalia. Electric clippers, scissors, snippers, wire hairbrush and all that business. In short order she becomes an expert at it. Nina is the most stylishly trimmed poodle west of the Pecos and east of Fourth Creek.

I make the dog mistake last week of complaining about the need for a haircut. The gleam in Marie's eyes is unmistakable. She hauls out the electric clippers, scissors, even the wire hairbrush, bless God.

Marie is the intrepid, adventurous type. Always an explorer. Had she lived in the days of Daniel Boone she probably would've been riding shotgun in the second wagon.

But not on my noggin. I would have none of it. Cathy puts in her two bits worth. "Mommy could do a better job on you than Nina because you'll hold still."

I'm not about to hold still for this deal. And I say so. And all week this portable dog barber shop lies conspicuously and conspicuously on the kitchen table. The atmosphere gets so tense you can cut it with a knife. I limp through the kitchen in my pajamas and out the corner of my eye catch Marie and Cathy watching my shaggy dome like a cat watching a bird in a chinaberry bush.

Dorothy drives up from Charlotte one afternoon and gets into the act. "Plenty of wives," she says, "cut their husbands' hair."

"Name one, just one," I say, "and don't give me any fictitious stuff."

She couldn't produce.

The pressure builds up until I resort to reminding them of the story about Sampson, how he was the strongest man in the world until he was tricked by this Philistine woman named Delilah who cut his hair. Overnight he became weak and sticky.

"We've been reading about those things in school," says Cathy, "and they are just make believe."

Make believe! How do you like that? And all the time this kid has supposed to have been getting educated.

But I held out to the bitter end and on Saturday finally managed to get to the barber shop.

I'm still master of my household. Theoretically, that is.

Incidentally, the fact that it carried Ireddell by 13 votes was a sort of political accident. The boys up in Concord township got mousetrapped into making an early commitment in favor of the amendment. By the time they had seen the error of their ways, it was too late to switch. I am proud of the whole Tribune family that makes these awards possible from year to year.

In an overall critique dealing with news coverage, editorials, features, photography, makeup, and reproduction quality of newspapers in general, the judges had to say, "The Mooreville Tribune is a strong newspaper." Then went on to say that a newspaper photo by Philip Parker on the opening of the football season in the September 5 issue was one of the best they had ever seen.

I don't care how good or sensational a newspaper might be, the whole history of journalism proves that its circulation can only be built slowly through the years. The circulation of the Tribune is now over the 5,000 mark. One of my ambitions in life is to live long enough to see it hit 6,000, a feat of no small dimensions in a non-county seat town.

John Glenn has been my favorite among the astronauts from the beginning. He is a great credit to his state and to the nation. And he has every right to run for the U. S. Senate. But he'll get clobbered in the primary by Senator Stephen Young.

Senator Young is one of the most able, conscientious and honest men in the U. S. Senate. He has a tremendously fine record in Washington, furthermore has a solid organization behind him.

Town Manager Will Enforce Housing Code

On the night of February 6, 1961, the Town Board adopted the first minimum housing ordinance in Mooreville's history. The commissioners ruled that the law would become effective three years from the date of its adoption.

When the minimum housing code comes alive February 6, it is likely to get the attention of a great many homeowners and landlords who have ignored it during its three years of dormancy.

City Manager Cy Brooks will be charged with the enforcement of the law, and he said "this week that he fully intends to do just that. Brooks sees a lot of quick changes in the attitude occupants."

Town Blue Law Not Bothered By High Court

The outlawing of the latest state "blue law" will have virtually no effect on the observance of the Sabbath in Mooreville.

The State Supreme Court last week knocked down the year-old ordinance that prohibited the sale of certain merchandise on Sunday in about three-fourths of North Carolina's counties.

City Manager Cy Brooks explained following the court ruling that Mooreville's existing Sunday closing ordinance is more stringent than the now-buried state regulation, so the state bill never was applicable here at all.

Brooks said "blue laws" specified what types of merchandise could not be sold on Sunday. Mooreville's law spells out what types of businesses can operate on Sunday. Brooks said the town's Sunday closing law more than covers the requirements of the state statute.

The Supreme Court did not touch Mooreville's ordinance.

Piedmont Bank And Trust Co. Reports Excellent '63 Year

Piedmont Bank and Trust Company enjoyed the best year in its history during 1963, according to reports released at the annual meeting of the institution's stockholders.

J. V. Lore, president of the financial institution, reported that the bank's total resources at the close of business on December 31, 1963, were $8,020,511.40. He also reported that the institution's deposits increased more than nine per cent during the year just ended, the capital increased more than eight per cent, and the per share value of stock increased $1.26. Total investments, loans and bonds averaged more than $5 million.

According to Lore, profits before taxes amounted to $138,961.94, while federal income and N. C. excise taxes amounted to $32,646.83, resulting in a net profit of $86,315.11. This represents a profit gain of 4.24 per cent over 1962. Stockholders were paid $32,000 in dividends and the undivided profit.

'63 Best Year In History Of Federal S & L

The year just ended was the best in the history of the Mooreville Federal Savings and Loan Association, reports released by officials of the financial house last Wednesday afternoon revealed.

The occasion was the 27th annual meeting of the stockholders of the institution, held in the district court room of the association building on North Main street.

During 1963, the association's assets increased $881,161.61, to an all-time high of $10,977,837.32, the greatest one-year increase in the history of the firm.

Mooreville Federal, during 1963, paid its savers $252,947.00 in dividends.

R. J. Alander Speaks At C-C Banquet Event

Mooreville's progress during the past decade is the envy of its neighboring metropolis of Charlotte, a Queen City newspaper advertising executive declared here Tuesday night.

Robert J. Alander, advertising manager for The Charlotte Observer and The Charlotte News, said this community's high compliment during an address before some 400 persons, gathered for the annual banquet meeting of the Mooreville Chamber of Commerce.

The meeting was held in the National Guard Armory, getting underway at 7 o'clock.

Introduced by John Alfred, newly elected vice president of the local Chamber, Alander said "Mooreville is an envied city."

Illustrating his statement, the speaker said:

"Mooreville is more than just a city. It is more than just a lot of houses concentrated in one area. It is a city that brags first and foremost about its main asset—people. How well I know this from having visited in your community over so many times. I know of no single asset that is quite as valuable as the human product."

Alander, who only last week was presented one of advertising's highest awards, built his address around the subject: "A Field Of Diamonds."

Continuing to stress the growth of Mooreville during the past decade and how it is the envy of Charlotte, Alander declared that "the Mooreville of yesterday and of today are two entirely different commodities. To write the characteristics of the former and compare them with the latter would bring about a gasp of amazement at the remarkable progress that has been made."

"Your plan of development of course has been responsible to a great extent for this progress," the speaker stressed.

"Mooreville is the city of opportunity," Alander declared, "and everybody is looking at you."

"To compare the two," he stated, "is something I am sure is a citizen of Mooreville would be proud to have you look at. I cannot agree with the statement that is made calling Mooreville 'Small Town U. S. A.' even though it is."

April 28 Now Definite Date For Tax Vote

April 28, a Tuesday, no longer is the tentative date for the recreation tax referendum. It is the definite date.

When the Town Board decided early this month to call a vote on the tax-for-recreation question, April 28 was first choice as the time for the election.

But City Manager raised the question whether local elections are restricted by statute as to how close to state votes, in this case the primaries coming up in May, they can be held. The board asked its attorney, Bill Pope, to make sure April 28 was in keeping with the requirements of other election laws.

The attorney posed the question.

Tribune Honored By Press Association

The Tribune was honored recently during the annual convention of the N. C. Press Association in Chapel Hill. These members of the news staff were especially pleased to receive, for the third year in a row, the first place plaque for the best news coverage of any weekly in the state. Behind Juanita (Mrs. Lewis) Davis are, from left, Philip Parker, Everett Jones and Len Sullivan. The Tribune also won second place awards in the photography and editorial divisions of the statewide contest. Gov. Terry Sanford made the presentations.

Uncle Dan From Doobie Says:

DEAR MR. EDITOR:

The fellows at the country store Saturday night was in a state of confusion over the political situation. Most of the fellows was gitting as confused as the battle lines in Vietnam and the Congo.

Zeke Grubb reported he had saw in the papers where candidate Rockefeller says he's running again the "Four-D Formation—debt, disaster, deceit, and Deceit." Now the to ever- and at the same time, Zeke said, Rockefeller allowed as how he ain't promising no miracles if he gits to Washington.

After the miracle we've had in Washington for the last 12 year, like Billy Sol Estes and Bobby Baker, for instance, I hope whoever wins will give us a few small ones to taper off on so's to keep us from breaking up and gitting the heebie-jeebies.

It's hard, Mister Editor, to figger out them politicians. A Republican candidate will git up on the stump and say the country is sagging when it ought to be, zigging, and the Democrat candidate will allow as how the Democrats has been busy for four years trying to git the zig out of the zig from Ike's eight year in Washington. A heap of the candidates ain't got the answers to nothing, but I never knowed one that didn't keep a big stock of replies on hand.

Furthermore, it has got so the candidates at national level is using a heap of now words that was confusing to the voters. For instance, one fellow running for Congress says we need more "groupmanship" amongst our allies abroad. I reckon this is a first cousin to that "togetherness" business we been hearing about.

I may be gitting old and set in my ways but it's hard for me to see what "groupmanship" has got to do with our books being $315 billion in the red and $8 billion out of balance for the year. While the Government is fixing us up with fall-out shelters again what might come from Russia, they ought to give us oxygen tents for what we know is coming from Washington.

Even Ed Doollittle, that is, a authority on politics, special the Republican brand, says he can't tell up from down or front from back about the political double talk now going on amongst the candidates. Ed says it makes him feel about the fellow in the cafe, complaining to the waiter the water was muddy. The waiter jumped all over the fellow, claimed he couldn't see 'wood, said they wasn't nothing the matter with the water, the glass was just dirty.

Zeke was of the opinion both sides would have to set up some of them Markus of Quenberry rules or the water was going to git too muddy or the glass too dirty for the voters to tell from nothing what it's all about.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dan
