Highway Commission Spends $59 Million On Improvements In '63

Apache Canyon by Brian Garfield. Civilian scout Will Brady has the job of recapturing a young Apache who has escaped from Fort Apache before the boy, son of a chief, can reach his father's camp. But Brady discovers that the tensions and conflicts within the nation are fully as dangerous as the Indian threat without.

During 1963 the North Carolina State Highway Commission let to contract 1,100 contracts, exclusive of Interstate work, for a total of 49 projects, each having a contract value over $200,000. The projects were completed during 1963. This amount includes work on the Trunk System, the Rural Collector System, and Secondary System.

On the Interstate System, 24 projects were completed during 1963, each having a contract value over $200,000. At this present time, 50 more construction improvements have been let to contract and are still active on portions of the Interstate System, the Trunk System, the Rural Collector System, and Secondary System.

All information is based on a highway construction progress report prepared by the planning department of the North Carolina State Highway Commission. Data and compilations were made in mid-December 1963, and actual completion of these projects was based on anticipated winter weather which would allow construction completion by January 1, 1964.

Breakdown of expenditures shows that $15,649,013 was for state construction projects on some 50 miles of Interstate Highways, and the remaining $44 million was distributed between Trunk System Routes, the Trunk Feeder System, the Rural Collector System, and the Secondary Road System.

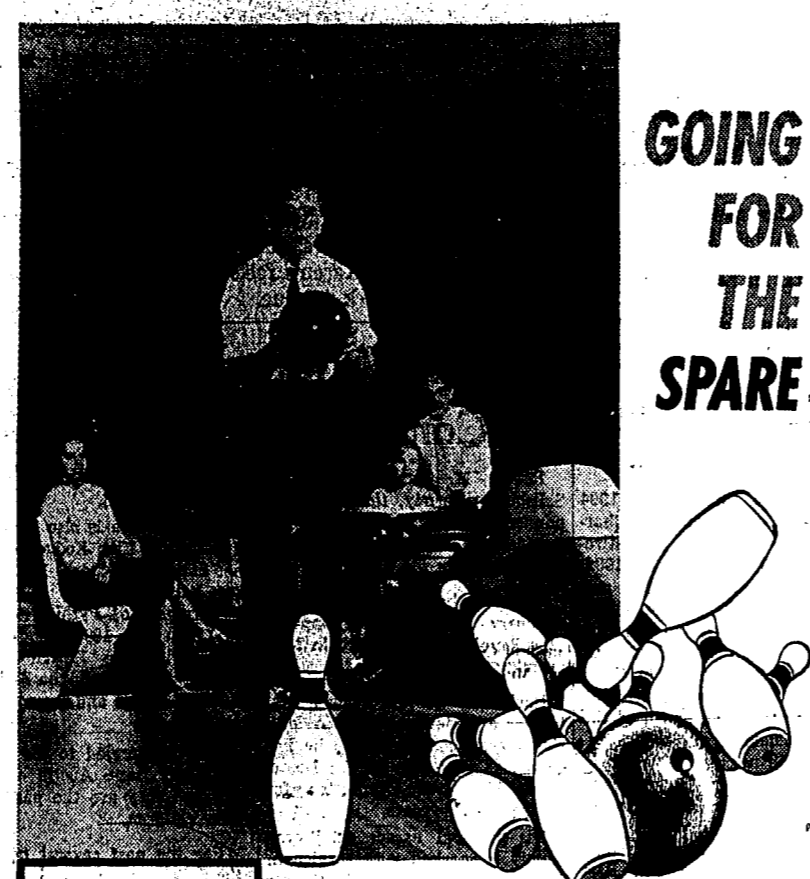

Carry-over projects which had been let in previous years and were completed in 1963 totaled $9,814,428 in actual contract value on 1,220 miles of roadways. $17 million of the total amount was spent on work for the Interstate System, $23 million on other Trunk System, $10 million on the Trunk Feeder System, $4 million on the Rural Collector System and $14 million on the Secondary System.

At the end of 1963 contracts valued at $98,534,734 were still active and had not been completed.

Total value of all contracts active sometime in 1963 is $134,240,162. This amount does not include right of way acquisition, engineering or contingencies, nor work completed by Highway work forces or maintenance.

Since 1953 the North Carolina State Highway Commission has received a total of 2,981 contracts for 147,453 miles of contract work with a total contract value of $568.

'Partial Pay' New Concept In Social Security Program

A new concept in social security was described today as "partial retirement payments" by Taft McCoy, field representative of the Salisbury Social Security office.

McCoy stated that many people in the area are getting some retirement benefits even though they are working and earning more than $1200 per year. He also pointed out that more people in the area could be receiving from one to eleven months benefit per year by filing an application.

McCoy went on to explain that earnings of $1,200 per year is no longer an absolute level beyond which all social security benefits are cut off. Instead, $1,200 is the point at which social security benefits begin to be adjusted due to excess earnings.

"The actual point of earnings at which all benefits are cut off varies with the total yearly benefits due the family," McCoy said.

He urged that all workers past retirement age check with the social security office at 105 Corbitt avenue, Salisbury, North Carolina, for an individual analysis of their status.

"Don't delay — check today," McCoy emphasized. "Benefits are retroactive for only 12 months before the month of filing an application, and an application filed now will allow you to consider pay cuts off. Instead, $1,200 is the point at which social security benefits begin to be adjusted due to excess earnings."

U. S. Treasury Renews Taxpayers Savings Option

Federal income taxpayers were reminded yesterday by P. M. Barger, Savings Bonds chairman for the Treasury, that the Treasury is again offering them the option of taking refunds in U. S. Savings Bonds. The savings option, first introduced last year, is an addition to the two standard options of taking tax refunds in cash or applying them to the next year's tax.

"By electing to take his refund in Series B Bonds," Barger said, "the taxpayer holds onto his money conveniently, through a secure, risk-free investment which pays interest at a guaranteed rate. He avoids seeing his money absorbed by household expenses, vanishing completely in day-to-day spending. And he learns what all hard-earned dollars are worth. He discovers — that U. S. Savings Bonds are one of the finest possible ways to save for a secure future."

"And, of course, every citizen should realize that every dollar he invests in U. S. Savings Bonds makes our economy stronger and our whole nation more secure."

Temporarily taking their 1963 refund in Savings Bonds entitled the 1963 Bond sales by $12.2 million and raised the number of Bonds issued by 27,455. This year, Barger said, the Treasury hopes the plan will further increase the sale of Savings Bonds, and encourage more citizens to develop regular savings habits.

"Nothing could be more convenient than getting your Savings Bonds through the tax refund plan," Barger points out. "All it takes is a short mark in the Savings Bonds book on either tax form 1040 (long) or 1040A (short)."

Today, it seems, most children are given weekly allowances by their parents.

This system is designed to provide extra not normally furnished by the parents.

Top, quite a few teenagers have part-time jobs — working after school hours and on Saturdays. This gives them additional spending money.

But do these allowances and earnings give kids enough money to maintain their social activities?

Last week as the Mooreville Tribune's roving reporter went about the task of preparing one of the paper's weekly features,
