HITTING THE BOOKS — Tis an ill storm indeed that blows no good. The siege of bad weather Sunday afternoon and Monday was welcomed by Senior High students. No school Monday meant a one-day delay in the beginning of dreaded semester exams. The tests were scheduled to begin today, but the ice and snow set them back a day. The exams will get underway throughout the school Friday and continue through Wednesday. The kids put the time they were trapped indoors to good use. Junior Mike Robinson and senior Ann Murray were typical of the students who hit the books, trying to concentrate everything they knew into a few hours of review.

☆ Public Library Notes ☆

A Hero For Regis by Jack Hoffenberg. A story of a Southern town and its homecoming hero—a farm boy returning from World War II with a Congressional Medal of Honor he hadn't earned, but determined to make a better life for himself in the postwar world. It is a story of politics, sex, and murder, involving the local banker, who is both a political boss and the secret head of a moonshining syndicate, and his daughter, whose love affair with a schoolteacher ends in her lover's murder.

The Gray Aliens by J. Hunter Holly. Science-fiction story of an invasion of Earth by aliens from another world-telepathic creatures with weapons powerful enough to destroy humans, leaving no bodies, but piles of clothing, leaving as if the owners had somehow flowed out of them.

The Shockdeadeye by J. P. Holmes. Paroled from Iron Mountain Penitentiary, Logan Dalhart is determined to rebuild his run-down ranch in the country where he had been raised — even though, as a scalp, half of them white.

Bride Of Pendorric by Victoria Holt. An atmosphere of brooding mystery surrounds the old house on the cliffs of Cornwall where Pavel Farrington comes as Hoc Pendorric's bride, and she soon learns of the legend concerning earlier brides who had met tragic death there — a legend that promises death to any bride of Pendorric. After several near-fatal accidents, she becomes suspicious of her husband, who would gain financially from her death, and in her bewildered despair she turns to the one person she should avoid.

Follow The Free Wind by Leigh Brackett. A fast-moving Western based on the true-life adventures of James Beckwourth — a renegade who set his Indians onto white traders; a horse thief who left men helpless on the prairies; a man who had taken a hundred scalps, half of them white.

Tag Renewal Cards Should Have Arrived

Tar Heel motor vehicle owners who may not have received their 1964 license plate renewal card were urged today to take immediate action.

Department of Motor Vehicles officials say the all-important cards necessary for renewing license plates were mailed from Raleigh in mid-December and should have been delivered by now. If not, the agency's Registration Division says, "Please let us know at once so that another card may be sent."

Proper procedure is to write the Motor Vehicles Department, Raleigh, giving the make and identification number of your car, your last year's tag number and your full name and address.

To obtain a 1964 North Carolina license plate, the owner of a self-propelled motor vehicle unless he has qualified as a self-insurer or filed a bond, must have and certify that he has liability insurance with a company licensed to write liability insurance in North Carolina.

Certification is by Form FR-2 which appears on the reverse side of the 1964 license application card. The name of the insurance company, the policy number and the effective date of the policy is required.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Edward Scheidt stresses the importance of reading the instructions given for obtaining a new plate and supplying accurately all the information required. He particularly cautions against giving an insurance agent's name or agency name for that of the insurance company and recommends that the full name of the insurance company and the policy number be taken direct from the policy.

Motor vehicle owners are urged by the licensing officials and the local license plate agents to complete the FR-2 certification before the application card is presented for a new license plate. Issuance of new tags will move slowly unless this is done.

Scheidt warns that the penalty for certifying falsely that liability insurance is in effect is revocation of plate, suspension of driver's license for 30 days and fine or imprisonment.

Issuance of the 1964 licenses will begin in Mooresville January 2 through the license plate agency on South Broad street. Lloyd B. Cashion is the local agent.

Weather Quirk Plays Havoc With Sermon

It was quite a Sunday for the Rev. Roger Allen of the First Presbyterian Church in Albert Lea, Minn. As he announced the opening hymn at the morning service, a crooner's voice began singing a pop tune over the church public address system. Later his prayer was accompanied by a weather forecast, and at the conclusion of his sermon a voice broke in to report Albert Lea could expect strong winds.

Through some quirk of electronics and weather conditions, the church sound system picked up broadcasts of a local radio station.

Burlington Expects 10 Per Cent Rise In 1964 Capital Spending

Capital expenditures for Burlington Industries, Inc., during 1964 will be about 10 per cent higher than in 1963, according to the company's annual report which has been mailed to some 35,000 stockholders.

Charles F. Myers, Jr., president, notes that the company's capital spending will continue to be directed toward profit improvement through expanded production, increased efficiency, broader product mix and better quality.

Burlington, largest and most diversified textile producer, operates 126 plants in 102 American communities in 18 states, with overseas operations conducted in nine foreign countries and Puerto Rico.

The chain operates two plants in Mooresville—Mooresville Mills and Cascade Weaving Company.

The company invested more than $52 million for improvement and expansion of Burlington plants and equipment in 1963. During the last five years, excluding acquisition of new companies, Burlington has invested $205 million for new capital equipment and facilities.

Highlights of Burlington's activities during its 1963 fiscal year, covered in the report, include the achievement of record sales and earnings, a dividend increase, simplification of the company's debt and equity structure, expansion of research and new-product development and increased overseas activities.

Myers reported to stockholders that "the immediate outlook for our business appears good. Orders in most divisions are running ahead of this time last year and some strengthening of prices is now developing."

He added that "there has been much said about the problems of the American textile industry and too little said about its achievements. The better companies have been modernizing both production facilities and management methods. Research efforts have been intensified and markets expanded through development of new and more desirable products. Capital spending has increased appreciably, bringing more rapid technological advances to help meet foreign competitive pressures. The result has been a new vitality for our industry and a growing recognition on the part of investors and consumers that textiles are now a more dynamic factor in the American economy."

Postal Dog Team Bows To Airplane

The last remaining dog team operated by the United States Post Office Department is about to be replaced by an airplane in Alaska.

For more than 20 years dog teams have carried the mail 50 miles from Gambell to Savoonga, on St. Lawrence Island in the Bering Sea. Chester Noongwook, of Savoonga, who runs a dog team once a week with 300 pounds of mail, will be replaced by a plane making 3 flights weekly with up to 600 pounds of capacity.

Instead of 8 to 12 hours by dog team, the trip by plane between the 2 towns will take 30 minutes.

FRIGID FUN — South Iredell's third snow of the winter wasn't much as snows go, but it offered this advantage over previous cold snaps: it came in the night, and the morning after dawned cold and clear. With two inches of ice and snow underfoot and clear skies above, conditions were ideal for kids to romp outdoors. Two of the hardy Mooresville youngsters who braved the crisp Monday morning air were Johnny Arthurs, making like a motor, and Vann Johnson, the passenger. The pup riding shotgun just happened along in time for the ride. He didn't give his name.

Social Security Benefits Being Lost By Many Farmers

Many farmers in Iredell county lose valuable social security credit, according to Tait McCoy, field representative for social security.

McCoy said these are farmers who do not file income tax and self-employment reports on their farm earnings.

McCoy pointed out that federal law requires farmers who clear at least $400 a year to file tax returns and pay social security taxes. Farmers who do not clear $400, but whose total farm sales are at least $2500, must also file income and pay social security tax on it under special provisions for farmers only, and thus earn credit for low or no profit years.

In order to make proper reports farmers should keep accurate records of their income and expenses. Records are strong witness for the soon and must be filed not later than February 15, 1964, to avoid penalty.

McCoy explained that all social security benefits are based on earnings credited to the worker's social security record. If the self-employed farmer does not report his earnings, there is no way the Social Security Administration can pay benefits when he reaches retirement age, becomes disabled, or dies. And he may also be breaking the law.

Both social security and internal revenue offices have free booklets that tell more about social security coverage for farmers. The social security office in Salisbury is at 105 Corriher avenue.

UF Annual Session Moved To Jan. 28

Because of a conflict with preparations for the Mooresville Chamber of Commerce annual banquet, the date of the annual meeting of the Mooresville-South Iredell United Fund has been changed.

UF President Jim Roeser said this week the UF breakfast session will not be held January 21, the date of the Chamber banquet, but will be held the following Tuesday morning, January 28.

All persons interested in the area United Fund have been invited to attend the Dutch breakfast at the War Memorial, beginning at 8 o'clock. The meeting will feature reports on various phases of the UF campaign last fall, and a committee report on proposed changes in the local UF constitution will be entertained by the group.

Area Students Make King's Dean's List

Three students of the Mooresville-Troutman area made the Dean's List for the fall quarter at King's College, Charlotte.

These honor students include Miss Faye Cashion, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cashion, route 1, Mooresville, who is taking the general business secretarial course; Miss Linda Powell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loren Q. Powell, of Troutman, who is taking courses in accounting; and Lamar Jordan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Glenn Jordan, of Troutman, who was graduated in November after completing the junior accounting course.

THE PEOPLE SPEAK:

This week, when the Mooresville Tribune's roving Reporter went out to obtain the data for the paper's weekly feature, The People Speak, he asked the following question:

Do you really believe smoking invites cancer?

The answers of the four on-the-streeters question were as follows:

E. Y. HOWARD, Mooresville Mills, 527 Walnut street: "I really don't know. Doctors say it does, but I don't believe it enough to quit smoking."

LEONARD HOUSTON, automobile salesman, Salisbury Drive: "No, sir. If smoking caused cancer, half the people in the world would be dead."

ELIZABETH NANTZ, loan firm cashier, 388 East Wilson avenue: "Yes, I think smoking invites cancer. I base my belief on reports that claim that smoking causes cancer . . . yes, the reports have convinced me."

REV. MARCUS PRINCE, III, minister, Mount Mourne: "Yes, I do. I place confidence in the reports that say that smoking invites cancer. I think these reports have been done impartially and the statistics are most convincing."
